RICE STRIKE IS FINISHED; SHOPS OPEN FROM TODAY

Dealers Decide To Resume As Resistance Weakens

SPLIT IN GUILD

Members Charge Al Blame To Committeemen

The rice strike is ended.

Signs of the break-up, which have been increasing for the past several days, became unmistakable yesterday when a number of shops in all districts began selling and today all establishments—both in the Settlements and in Chinese territory—are expected to resume business, following a meeting of the merchants held at the Chia Kuo Tang Rice Guild in Nantao.

The ending of the strike, however, brings a decisive split between the members and the officials of the merchants' guild and may introduce complications into any further negotiations which may be opened with the Council in connection with the licensing question. The meeting yesterday was not attended by any of the directors of the guild and at its conclusion, in deciding to resume business, the dealers bitterly scored their officials, placing the entire blame of the strike upon the latter and charging them with failure to protect the interests of the members.

DENOUNCE DIRECTORS

A number of speakers rose to denounce the directorate. The committeemen, it was declared, thrust the strike upon the body of the organisation. It was the committee which invited the signature of the document calling for the demonstration against the Council's order, and, in the end, the speakers asserted, the committee tried to call off the strike without consulting the membership.

The meeting, while declaring itself in favor of resumption of business, took no action with regard to the licensing order. Individual shop keepers, however, stated that they would not take out permits until the Chinese Chamber of Commerce has secured abrogation of the offending clauses in the regulations.

It is understood that a movement is afoot for the ousting of the guild's officers and a complete reorganisation of the institution. Opinion was also expressed that the committeemen should be held responsible for all losses sustain-

FRANCE TO FORM BIG CONSORTIUM TO SAVE BANK

London Asked To Aid In Rehabilitation Of Institution

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, July 7.—The newspapers state that M. Briand read to the Senatorial Commission two telegrams in regard to the Banque Industrielle de Chine, the first assuring the French agents in the east of the solidarity of the French state with great financial establishments, including the Banque Industrielle, and, the second asking the French Ambassador in London, M. de St. Aulaire, if the support of high financial circles in London could be counted upon to solve the difficulties of the bank.

The second telegram was sent on January 13 but as the French Ambassador had only just taken up his new duties, it was impossible for him to give the required information. M. Briand indicated that a vast consortium would probably be constituted to take over the affairs of the Banque Industrielle.

The Chinese Bankers' Association in Peking has announced that it will redeem the notes of the Banque Industrielle de Chine issued in Peking, Tientsin, Shanghai and Hankow at par. However, it will not undertake to meet other obligations of the bank.

Peking telegrams say that the Pien Yih Banknotes are also being refused. The bank paid out $500,000 on July 5 and the run is still on. The total number of notes issued by the bank was $2,000,000.

Sinn Fein May Drop Demand For Republic Is Belfast Rumor

KING SEES SMUTS

Middleton To Explain Attitude Of Craig And Cabinet

Sinn Fein Ready To Drop Republic

(U. S. Naval Radio)

Belfast, July 8.—An unconfirmed rumor is being circulated that the Sinn Fein party is prepared to abandon their demand for a republic.

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 7.—While the Dublin area has been quiet during the peace discussions, the guerilla warfare against the Crown forces elsewhere in Ireland continues unabated. Fourteen police and one soldier were killed and twenty police and five soldiers were wounded in the course of twenty-five ambushes of police and military patrols. In the majority of cases the Sinn Fein attackers were routed.

GIVEN 10 YEARS

London, July 7.—In connection with the burning of hayricks at Mitcham last March, an Irishman named Cogan, an ex-Lieutenant in the Irish Republican Army, was sentenced at Guildford today to ten years penal servitude for arson, attempted murder of a policeman and for being in possession of arms.

London, July 7.—The King this morning received General Smuts and heard his report regarding the situation in Ireland.

General Smuts afterwards proceeded to Downing Street to attend the conference of Imperial Prime Ministers which was occupied entirely with foreign affairs. Nothing has been settled about General Smuts' revisiting Ireland, but the Earl of Midleton will attend the conference in Dublin tomorrow and will explain the attitude of the Cabinet and will also define the attitude of the Ulster Premier, Sir James Craig.

VALERA FOR PEACE?

(U. S. Naval Radio)

London, July 8.—It was confidently believed that Sir Horace Plunkett brought definite proposals from De Valera to the conference on Irish peace. General Smuts held a long conference today with Lloyd George, Sir James Craig, Sir Hamar Greenwood, Lord Birkenhead, Mr. Balfour, Earl Middleton and Sir Horace Plunkett.

The Prince of Wales saw Sinn Fein flags intertwined with the Union Jack when he visited the looted quarter in Liverpool today.

SEARCH PEDESTRIANS

Dublin, July 8.—Peace negotiations have failed to bring an armistice and soldiers are searching pedestrians for weapons.

Anglo-American Flotilla To Leave Looters No Chance For Descent Upon Ichang

Gunboat Of One Or Other Flag Will Be Kept On Station Until Pest Of Unpaid Military Is Ended By Chinese Government

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Ichang, July 1 (by mail).—It is not often that this out of the way port is visited by an Admiral, but to have two in port at the same time is really remarkable.

Admiral Strauss of the American Navy arrived here on June 25 on board the U. S. S. Wilmington and a reception was held for him that same afternoon by the members of the American community. On the next day, Rear-Admiral Borrett of the British Navy arrived on his flagship, the Bee.

It was the political situation that called these officers here, and it is understood they have made arrangements that Ichang will not be left without a gunboat of either the one or the other flag, so as to give some modicum of protection to foreigners in the port. Admiral Strauss left on Monday afternoon, and Admiral Borreti sailed the next morning for down river ports.

Troops are now being transferred from Pa-Tung, a small city about 45 miles up river, to some other place further down. They have tried to make this halting place, for the purpose of getting money out of the merchants, and Reuter's correspondent is informed that the commanding officer did succeed in getting a sum of $10,000 from the Chamber of Commerce.

Consular representations have been made with the object of keeping these men far enough away from the city to remove all fear of another attack, and it has been agreed that they will not be disembarked here but taken to a small village called Ku-Lao-Pei, just below the Tiger's Teeth Gorge, and about 15 miles distant. But no sooner is a promise made than it is broken, for many of these soldiers were brought down here yesterday, and their boats were anchored at the railway terminus. The people of the city feel very anxious while these men are being transported through the district; but they would be happy if they knew that no more soldiers were likely to be near the place for ages to come.

Colorful Celebration Of French Holiday Is Planned

Elaborate preparations are being carried forward by the authorities of the French Concession and by prominent French residents for this year's celebration of the great French national holiday, the Fall of the Bastille, and while no announcement of a program of events has yet been issued it is stated that not only will the celebration extend over two days, July 13 and 14, as in former years, but the whole festival will be on a larger scale than others that have preceded it.

Workmen have already been busy for some days in putting in place illuminations and decorations that are to transform into a fairy-land the extensive grounds of the French Park and the Koukaza Gardens. It is planned that the opening event of the observance of the holiday will be a gorgeous and colorful illuminated parade through the streets of the French Concession on the night of July 13. In connection with this a multitude of novel and bizarre electrical effects for floats and marchers is being worked out.

CORPS TO TAKE PART

The main celebration is to take place on Thursday, July 14th. It is expected that the French Volunteer Corps, which has been inactive since the beginning of the war and which now is being reorganised, will play a prominent part in the observance.

The second day's celebration will open with the giving of the salute to the colors in the morning. Various organisations and detachments from French warcraft in the harbor will participate in this ceremony. The usual official reception at the French Consulate will be followed by a reception at the Cercle Sportif Francais and a number of events of the kind are to be arranged.

In line with the custom of other years an extensive program of games and sports with many novel features will be held in the afternoon following formal patriotic exercises at which a number of addresses will be delivered.

The illumination, dancing and various amusement features will take place in the Koukaza Gardens and the French Park at night.

MUKDEN WARLORD NOW SEMENOFF'S NEW OBJECTIVE

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 8.—It is reported that Ataman Semenoff is negotiating with General Chang Tso-lin with the object of obtaining permission to transfer his troops from Grodekovo to the west.

Peking, July 8.—The Military Council at Mukden, which was attended by all the leaders of the Mongolian Expeditionary Force, has come to an end, full agreement having been reached on the steps to be taken to deal with the situation in Mongolia.

Huge New Dock Adds To London's Port Facilities

King And Queen Will Open Installation To Take 30,000 Tonners

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 7.—The King and Queen will tomorrow open a new dock extending the Victoria-Albert system. It is the largest work hitherto undertaken by the Port of London Authority and will enable vessels of 30,000 tons to be berthed within six and a half miles of the heart of the city.

The new dock provides a wet-dock of 64 acres in length and 38 feet in depth and contains fourteen berths for large steamers. It also provides a dry-dock of 750 feet in length, which is capable of extension.

U.S. STEEL CUTS PRICES; LOWERS WAGE FOR LABOR

(Reuter's Service)

New York, July 7.—In order to meet the prices of competitors, the Steel Corporation announces the same reductions in prices as the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, and also announces that from July 15 the so-called basis, or overtime, day will be cancelled, which is equivalent to approximately ten percent reduction in wages.

U.K. TRADE WITH RUSSIA GROWING

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 7.—The gradual expansion of exports from the United Kingdom to Russia since the signature of the Anglo-Russian trading agreement, was shown in the House of Commons by Mr. Stanley Baldwin, President of the Board of Trade, who stated that exports amounted to £2,000 in April, and £81,000 in June, exclusive of large consignments to the Baltic States which were re-exported to Russia.

200 Attack An Engineer While 1,400 Join Strike

Szechuen Soon May Have Railroad Despite Frustrated Dreams Of Many Explorers

Route From Burmah To Bhamo Deemed Practical But Location And Contours Are Kept In Secret Archives By British

By Bruce Hopper

RAILROAD romance has realised many dreams. The conquering lines of steel have been pushed into the apparently impenetrable jungles of Africa, into the vast and desolate muskeg of the Arctic watershed in northwestern Canada, over thousands of desert miles, across lakes, and under rivers. But there is one remote corner of the world as yet untouched by the railroad promoter, which is a persistent challenge to engineering brains and ingenuity. That is the landlocked provinces of Western China.

Considered one of the richest areas on the face of the earth, endowed beyond measurement with agricultural and mineral resources, and the prized hand products of skilled artisans, Szechuen still awaits the coming of the steam engine. In waiting she depends for her commerce on the ancient and honorable mule, and the equally ancient and lowly coolie tracker who pulls on the line of the ascending junks on the Yangtsze and Min rivers.

DREAM MAY MATERIALISE

And yet the dream of a steel highway to Chengtu may come into the realm of accomplished things before many years. Other railway dreams, lined with barriers almost as formidable, have materialised. The first transcontinental railroad of America was considered the miracle of the millenium in its infancy. When Vladivostock was brought within twelve comfortable days of London by the long broad guage of Silberia the wondering public believed no greater engineering feat could be performed. And yet a problem more difficult technically was solved in the tapping of the Matanuska coal fields in Alaska by the United States government engineers.

Perhaps the fondest railroad dream of all time was frustrated by the war, for the Kaiser's pet soap bubble was to step in his private wagon lits in Berlin, and emerge at Bagdad some four days later. The glories of the East wooed the imagination of the fallen schemer like incense and mystery.

Nor was the anticipation of German chemicals and Yaeger blankets in the bazaars of the lower Euphrates an unpalatable subject of conversation at the Potsdam breakfast table. That dream may still be realised, after the Kurds are exterminated, but the Kaiser will not declare the yearly dividends, nor control fifty-one percent of the stocks as he expected.

TRADE CENTURIES OLD

Trade has been lively in western China for thousands of years. The mules bells still tinkle as they did before the Christian era. Caravans fret over the same weary stones which marked the trails in the days of the great Chin, the builder of the wall. Commerce has not ceased to flow, but the extreme remoteness of Yunnan and Szechuen forbids carrying anything but living necessities into the far interior. Nearly all of the cotton worn by the 45,000,000 people of Szechuen must be carried for two months on mule back from Burma, or by river from Shanghai, which takes almost as long.

The dream of uniting the two most populous countries of the globe by rail had its birth in the British acquisition of upper Burma, 1886. There had been previous investigation which led to the proposal to build a line from Moulmein up the Salween river, through Siam and into southern Yunnan. That scheme was frowned upon, because it meant the development of Siam, rather than Burma. Water communication to Bhamo on the upper Irrawaddy was opened as early as 1567, and negotiations were conducted with the Mohammedan sultan then in power in Teng Yueh.

Reports brought back by Raymond Margary, who was later killed in Manwyne, and Colbourne Baber, 1874, dispelled all hopes for a time. They both declared the tribal country between Bhamo and Talifu, in Yunnan, to be absolutely impassable. The terrible mountain divides between the Shweli, Salween, and Mekong rivers gave rise to Baber's celebrated remarks about the necessity for boring a dozen Mount Cenis tunnels, and erecting a few Menai bridges, to reach the territory profitable to railway promoters.

In the last decade of the century, Major Davies, the most familiar authority on Yunnan, surveyed many promising routes, and declared in favor of a line to be extended from Lashio in Burma to Kunlong, and on to the Yangtsze. But Major Davies added in his report that the cost of such a line would be so great that the returns on invested money could not be realised for a long time.

BEST PRACTICABLE ROUTE

It was not until 1907 that an expedition under A. R. Lilley, chief engineer of the Indian government, discovered a practicable route from Bhamo through Teng Yueh to Hsia Kuan and Talifu. The location of the route is kept a profound secret in the archives of the India office of the British Government, but it is known that a railroad can be laid along the 386 miles from Bhamo to Talifu with a grade of one in twenty-five. The cost is estimated at less than G.$15,000,000.

That the construction of such a railroad is probable is one of the strong impressions gained by the traveller in western Yunnan. The competition between French and British trade in that section becomes keener every year. The French rail head at Yunnanfu is

CONSTANTINOPLE SAFE DESPITE KEMAL VICTORY

British Commander Makes Hurried Journey—Turks 40 Miles Away

Roumania To Aid Constantinople

(U. S. Naval Radio)

London, July 7.—The Daily Mail says that Roumania is believed to have offered 15,000 troops to aid the Allies defending Constantinople. Ten thousand are to fight with the British and the other 5,000 with the French.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, July 7.—The evening papers state that Major General Sir Charles Harington, Commander-in-Chief at Constantinople, has left for Angora with a view to negotiating an agreement with the Turks.

The French Government has given its cordial approval to this action and has urged Bekir Sami Bey, the head of the Turkish delegation which is now in Paris, visit London.

London, July 7.—It is generally reported that General Harington will meet Mustapha Kemal Pasha, the Leader of the Turkish Nationalists, at a Black Sea port and will hear the latter's proposals, conveying them later to the Allied High Commissioners.

General Harington has been instructed to express Great Britain's indignation at the shameful treatment accorded to British prisoners.

The meeting is the result of Mustapha Kemal's request for a personal interview.

Meanwhile it is stated authoritatively that alarmist reports regarding the situation are unwarranted. It is true that the Kemalists have occupied Ismid, but British circles do not believe that he is likely to attack the Allies at Constantinople.

Ismid is some 40 miles from Stamboul. It was the scene of one of the most horrible massacres of the war in the spring of 1920, after the evacuation of the gulf sector by the Greek troops who had advanced too far from their base at Brousa.

As soon as the Greeks had retired the Kemalists entered the town from the east, and killed Greek civilians and priests indiscriminately. The total number murdered was not exactly known, but thirty bodies were found in a cave into which they had been thrown after mutilation.

PREMIER IS WAITING TO HEAR CHINA ON ALLIANCE

Lloyd George Expects Peking's Answer By Monday

STATEMENT THEN

Premature Declaration Would Interfere In Negotiations

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 7.—Replying to a number of questions in the House of Commons today regarding the present position of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance, Mr. Lloyd George said he hoped soon to be able to make a statement on the matter, possibly on Monday next. This, however, he added, depended on the replies received from the United States, Japan and China, but a premature declaration would interfere with the success of the negotiations now proceeding.

London, July 8.—The Daily Chronicle gives prominence to the very important conclusions reached at yesterday's sitting of the conference of Imperial Prime Ministers.

The paper states that the ministers came to a general agreement with the British Government on large questions of foreign policy, including the Pacific and Far Eastern questions and problems of defence.

The view of the conference is that Japan's special friendship for the Empire should be brought into harmony with the free development of China, combined with close co-operation between the Empire and the United States. Most of the members of the Conference are of the opinion that the Anglo-Japanese Alliance will be modified in accordance with the League of Nations.

The Conference generally accepted the Government's policy in the Middle East, especially as regards the Mesopotamia and Palestine mandates. The spirit of this policy is fully to honor all undertakings, while committing the Empire to the smallest burden of responsibility and expenditure.

The Dominions' Prime Ministers have been especially appreciative of Lord Curzon's very frank statements regarding foreign affairs.

No difficulty has arisen in regard to the Dominions' immigration laws, as both India and Japan have accepted the right of the Dominions to choose the character of their own populations; while there has been a widespread desire for enlarged Empire press services.

The conference is expected to sit for another fortnight.

Sianfu Captured By Chihli Forces After Big Fight

New Tuchun Assumed Office Wednesday; Anfu War Lord Flees City

A Sianfu telegram received yesterday at Shanghai stated that the new Tuchun, Yen Shian-wen, has marched into the Shensi capital and assumed his office on Wednesday after the city was captured by Gen. Feng Yu-hsiang, the Christian leader of the Chihli faction. Chen Shu-fang, the Anfu warlord, fled when the city fell.

Both sides suffered heavily. Fully 25 percent of General Feng's crack troops were disabled. General Feng was repulsed several times before he reached Sianfu.

Hirohito Leaves France For Italy

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, July 7.—Crown Prince Hirohito left Paris this morning for Toulon where he will embark tomorrow for Italy. General Asson, representing President Millerand, M. Barthou, the French Minister of War, and the British, Italian, and Japanese Ambassadors bade him farewell at the station.

Rice Merchants Decide To Reopen Shops Today

ed during the eight days of the strike.

SOME SELLING YESTERDAY

A number of rice shops in the Settlement opened for business yesterday morning. There were ten of these in the Central and Louza districts. Selling, however, was not brisk, indicating that the people of these districts have been able to supply their needs from other sources. Prices quoted were high—$13.20 per picul, or almost $2 in advance of the figures prevailing when the shops closed last week. A number of shops in Nantao, Chapei and Frenchtown also began selling again yesterday.

The distribution depots established to care for the demands of small buyers continued to sell yesterday but will probably not be open after today.

In view of the clearing of the situation the police mobilisation orders were withdrawn at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The Chinese press again condemned the strike yesterday and one paper criticised the Chinese advisors to the Council, stating that Mr. C. C. Nieh is the only one who has been at all prominent in the negotiations toward a settlement of the controversy.

Over one hundred rice junks began unloading cargo yesterday. The selling price was $11.80 per picul. Rice hongs have telegraphed to the producing districts for resumption of shipments.

ORDERS ARREST

The arrest of Chang Mou-tseng, the man who started the rumpus at the meeting of the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce on Thursday morning, was ordered in a lengthy proclamation issued by Major-General Ho Fung-lin, Defense Commissioner of Shanghai and Woosung yesterday.

The proclamation, after recounting the events which led to the meeting of rice shopkeepers at the Chamber, stated that Chang was not recognised by any of the rice merchants present at the meeting, proving that he could not have been a responsible member of the rice trade, and that his opposition to the resumption of business created a disturbance of the peace and was calculated to cause the peace-loving merchants to sustain unnecessary losses.

Therefore, the proclamation continues, in order to maintain the peace of the community and for the protection of proper business men, the arrest of Chang is ordered and the Bureau of Foreign Affairs is requested to take out warrants in the International as well as the French Mixed Court for his apprehension and punishment with the full rigidity of law.

The proclamation concluded with instructions to the shopkeepers to resume their trade at once and refrain from being misled by radicals.

KWANGSI FORCES OCCUPY PAKHOI WITHOUT FIGHT

Cantonese Lines Also Have Advanced To Shundo And Near Hoksin

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hongkong, July 8.—According to a Cantonese official report, the Cantonese have captured Shundo, and are preparing to attack Hoksin.

Owing to the doubtful attitude of the Yunnanese at Luichow, the Canton Government is not supplying ammunition to Yunnan.

The Kwangsi forces captured Pakhoi on the second inst. On their approach, all the Cantonese withdrew on board a warship and junks.

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, July 5.—Kwangtung troops victorious in their first dash against the Kwangsi forces, are now said to be fighting for the very preservation of the South and are using every means to hold Chinglien, the port which Kwangsi is so eager to obtain.

At the outset, according to news reaching foreign sources here today, the Kwangtung troops lost some of the spirit which characterised them at the beginning of the provincial war and this is believed to be due in part to disagreements between their commanders.

After Wuchow was captured the Southern troops seemed to rest on their laurels and they did not follow up their victory though they had Kwangsi at their mercy for a time. Hunan threatened to fight if they went on the soil of that province.

Now the Kwangsi leaders seem to have partly carried out a flank movement to capture Chinglien and the situation has become so grave that General Chen Chuin-ming has gone to Chinglien to supervise the defense personally. When he visited the Wuchow front, he reported that conditions were good and the men ably commanded. Once the city was captured however, the commanders seemed to disagree as to the next move and it is not likely that there will be another battle in the Wuchow region for some time.

Kwangtung is said to have insufficient troops in Chinglien but that they are fighting hard to retain the outposts, realising that if the port is open to the North. Peking can send more arms, and even more men if necessary. Peking has promised to stand by Kwangsi in the fight and if the port is captured a decisive battle will have to be fought soon after if the Northern troops are to be driven back.

Mixed Court Jottings

A verdict containing the comment that some blame attached to the driver was returned yesterday by Assessor Hutchison and Magistrate Loh at the conclusion of the inquest into the circumstances surrounding the death of a Chinese street sweeper who was struck by a motor car driven by Miss A. Moses on June 23. A Sikh constable testified that the car, in turning into Szechuen from Nanking Road, was travelling very fast and that no horn was sounded. Mr. C. McGillivray, of the P. W. D., another witness, gave testimony contrary to this, stating that the car was travelling at a slow rate of speed and that the horn was sounded, the coolie, whose back was turned, stepping before the machine. The verdict was that while the evidence given conflicted on some points, in the opinion of the court some blame attached to the driver.

A printer who tried to cash a $50 check issued by a man who had no funds in the bank was sentenced to a week's imprisonment by the Mixed Court yesterday. He stated that he had been given the check by a friend in payment of a $50 debt. The friend was on hand to testify that the check had been handed to him by another man, also in payment of a debt. This man had afterward come to him and admitted that the check was worthless and he had then so informed the printer, but the latter evidently distrusted his word and presented the paper at the Wah Foo bank for payment.

Tsang Dzung-wo appeared to state that he had been standing at the tram terminus when he was approached by four men, who, without ceremony, robbed him of his purse, containing $17 in notes and $4 silver. He followed the quartet and succeeded in capturing one Tsiau Pah, who has a record of five previous convictions in the Mixed Court. The day before the case came up the purse was mysteriously returned to Tsang's home, while Tsang was absent. Which did not save Tsiau from a year's sentence and another order of expulsion.

Bhamo To Burmah Is Railway Slogan

the distributing center for goods arriving at Haiphong by sea.

British merchandise, such as Lancashire cotton, still depends upon caravan transportation from Bhamo. One of the strongest reasons making a railroad from Burma imperative is the conflict of political interests. Whichever railroad reaches Tali-fu and the Yangtsze first will have a purchase leverage on the trade of Szechuen.

Other schemes to reach Chengtu have been muted from time to time. There is the famous Hankow-Chungking-Chengtu scheme, which is called the "forty-year railroad" by the ribald Chinese. A station has been erected at Ichang to house the passengers, who may have to wait 20 years yet for the arrival of the first train.

POSSIBLE REACTION

The eventual attitude of the Chinese and tribes people in the remote places toward a railroad cannot be anticipated. They still regard foreigners as devils, armed with magic. Their reaction toward the first train might not be unlike that of the good people of Shanghai on the occasion of the first line from this city to Woosung, 1875.

The railroad had been built without regular governmental sanction, and when the inevitable happened, the killing of a coolie, the rail officials were forced to compromise. They offered to turn the road over to the Chinese at the end of a year, expecting the profits would insure its continuance. But they figured without their Chinese hosts. On the day the time expired the rails and ties were torn up, the rolling stock wrecked, and the whole mess of foreign junk transported to the lonely shores of Formosa to disappear in the sands.

The station at Shanghai was destroyed and the spot "fumigated."

How long will it be before this great railroad dream come true, and the richest province of the earth be made accessible?

Marines Landing Calms Smugglers Foiled By Consul

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 8.—Owing to the reports that Chinese employes of the Singer Sewing Machine Company at Changsha were engaged in opium traffic the American Consul there searched their premises.

Opium was found in the possession of two men who subsequently made threats against the Consul in consequence of which a party of sailors from the U. S. S. Villalobos was landed to guard the Consulate. No untoward circumstance occurred however.

It was stated yesterday at the local offices of the Singer Sewing Machine Company in regard to the exclusive story published in yesterday's China Press, that their foreign agent at Hankow had been despatched to Changsha to investigate the circumstances of the seizure. A report had been received from the Chinese agent at Changsha, Manager J. P. De Berry said, tending to show that the company's employes there were not implicated. The report sent down was that the premises on which the opium was found had been sub-leased to outside parties. The local office expects a detailed report on the matter within a few days.

DEATH OF YOUTH STIRS UP WRATH AGAINST POLICE

Yokohama Citizens Demand Better Protection By Japanese Force

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Yokohama, July 7.—The foreign community in Yokohama is deeply stirred over the murder of Mr. Ronald Hill, who was stabbed by a burglar yesterday.

Strong representations are being contemplated by the foreign Board of Trade and ex-service men to the authorities for more adequate police protection.

Suspects are reported to have been arrested but the police are silent about the case.

The funeral this evening was attended by practically the whole foreign community, who appeared very deeply moved. The body was carried by members of the British ex-Service Men's Organisation, of which the deceased was a member and a mass of flowers covered the coffin. The ceremonies were most impressive.

RUSSO-BOKHARA PACT IS ISSUED

(Delta News Agency)

Moscow, June 25.—The following is a summary of the Russo-Bokharian Treaty:

The November Revolution, which overthrew the yoke of capital, affords the right of free self-determination to all peoples of the former Russian Empire.

In accordance with this principle and in particular renouncing the colonial policy of the capitalist governments of Russia, whereby the toiling masses were the object of exploitation, the Russian Socialist Federal Soviet Republic, unconditionally recognises the complete independence and autonomy of the Bokhara Soviet Republic, and hereby renounces all privileges enjoyed by Tsarist Russia in Bokhara, and annuls the treaties and agreements concluded between the Turkestan Soviet Republic and the former Government of the Emir.

Impelled by the conviction that there not only exists no divergence of interests between the working masses of all countries, but that the betterment of their conditions can only be obtained in a common struggle and in unity of forces against the imperialist bourgeoisie of the world, the Bokhara Soviet Republic on the one hand and the Russian Soviet Republic on the other hereby conclude a military and political treaty.

Each of the contracting Republics undertakes to prohibit the formation or quartering in its territory of organisations or individuals hostile to the other.

Russia and Bokhara undertake to render each other support in the defense of their independence.

The contracting parties are immediately to draw up and conclude a special economic agreement whose guiding principles are to be the coordination of the economic and commercial policies of both republics and the mutual recognition of the right to organise in each other's territory various industrial, agricultural, transport, mining, and other enterprises.

The Russian Socialist Federal Soviet Republic is to assist the Soviet Republic of Bokhara in the establishment of its industry.

BRITAIN IS NOT SURE ABOUT FAR EASTN. REPUBLIC

No Recognition Now When Stability Of Siberia Is In Question

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 7.—Replying to Mr. J. E. Mills (Labor) in the House of Commons today, Colonel Amery, Parliamentary Under Secretary for the Colonies, stated that the Government did not propose to recognise the Far Eastern Republic at present as it was not satisfied in regard to its stability and as direct British interests in the Far Eastern Republic were not great.

Semenoff Is Near End Of His Career

(Delta News Agency)

Harbin, July 4.—According to information from Grodekovo, Semenoff is approaching the last days of his authority over the Grodekovo Cossacks. His detachments are melting away. Officers, who swore loyalty to him when he fled from Chita with his rich plunder from the state banks, are now deserting him one after the other. Even his faithful guard, General Clergo, has gone elsewhere to earn a living. Apart from all this, the Partisan detachments organised by the Ussuri Cossacks are determined to drive him off Russian soil, if they fail to capture him.

Regarding the negotiations between Merkuloff and Semenoff, the Vladivostok Volia (Freedom) writes: "The bargain has failed. Semenoff is in Grodekovo, contemplating proclaiming himself the ruler of Maritime Province, while Merkuloff proposes to bring him to terms. Neither one of them, however, is at all acceptable to the working class. It is evident that the rupture of negotiations was due to the desire of both to gain absolute power, there being no difference in their ideals. Both are working for their sinister aims with foreign help. On May 26, the Kiodo Maru and the Rising Sun bore witness to this.

Neither side has the sympathy of the population. While one is supported by small military groups, the other has the sympathy of a few hundred Non-Socialists who, instead of political honesty and wisdom, possess nothing else but greedy mouths. Both of them may declare themselves 'rulers' but not in the name of Russian people, nor on Russian soil."

Shensi Seat Is Handed Over By Ousted Tuchun

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 8.—Telegraphing to the Government on Wednesday, the Civil Governor of Shensi stated that General Chen Shu-fan had handed over to him the Tuchun's seal of office, and was preparing to leave Sianfu. He added that General Yen Hsiang-wen, the new Tuchun, was expected to arrive there the following day.

U.S. Navy Radio Cuts Out Relays

Recent improvements introduced in the naval wireless telegraph station at Cavite now enable the transmission of radio messages from the Philippines to San Francisco without relay. A large increase in electrical power and the construction of telegraph lines between Cavite and Los Banos are responsible for this direct trans-Pacific wireless service, covering some 7,000 miles in extent.

Formerly dispatches from the Islands to points in the United States were copied at Honolulu and from there relayed to the mainland. This meant unnecessary delay in transmission. The new improvements treble the capacity of the naval radio service to and from the Philippines.

DUPONT IS SENATOR

(Reuter's Service)

Dover (Delaware), July 7.—General T. Coleman Dupont, Republican, has been appointed Senator in place of Senator J. O. Wolcott, Democrat, who has been appointed Chancellor of Delaware University.

General Dupont is one of President Harding's closest friends, and is considered one of the strongest of the Republican advisers. During the presidential campaign he served as chairman of the finance committee, and contributed large sums from his private funds toward the party expenses.

From 1902 to shortly after the outbreak of the war he was president of the E. I. Du Pont de Nemours Co. His interests in the American financial world are multiple, including ownership of the McAlpin, Waldorf, Astoria, and other hotels of New York, and the Equitable Building. He is president of several coal companies, trust companies, and a director of several banks.

His cousin, Henry Algeron Du Pont, was U. S. senator from Delaware from 1906 to 1917. Ex-Senator Du Pont is a veteran of the Civil War, and was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor for "distinguished services at the battle of Cedar Creek."

Editor Freed From French Court Charge

Tsang Toong-sung, an editor of the China Times, appeared in the French Mixed Court yesterday on the charge of publishing an article on July 2 tending to incite the people to commit a breach of the peace. The article contained the reproduction of a letter issued by the Chapei Merchants'-Union and referring to the rice strike. The case was dismissed.

MAN and his problems

"The Thinker" express the crestfallen lot of the man who has never given serious thought to the future during the heyday of his earning capacity.

Better to give serious thought to the future now and make reasonable provision against the less prosperous days which may fall to your lot than to trust merely to luck.

Save money by all means, not with the idea of hoarding it for its own sake, but for the advantages and benefits its possession unquestionably insures to you and your family.

The Thinker
By Auguste Rodin
The Famous French Sculptor

Deeply depressed, hungry and overcome by his troubles, Rodin's model, so the story goes, sat dejectedly in a corner of the studio, unconscious that the desperate picture he made was caught by the keen eye of the master—to be immortalized in the above now celebrated work of sculpture known as "The Thinker."

Mr. W.C. Hooker Lost Life In Yangtsze After Giving Life Belt To His Sons

Mission Worker With Family Was On Way Home After 30 Years' Service---Mrs. Hooker And Two Sons Are In Shanghai

Further and more complete details concerning the tragic drowning of Mr. Wilbur C. Hooker of the American Bible Society at Ichang have been related to sympathetic friends here by Mrs. Hooker who with her two sons, Charles, age 14 and John age 12, is staying at the Missionary Home at No. 1 Quinsan Gardens.

At the time that he lost his life in the swift waters of the Yangtsze Mr. Hooker with his family was on his way back to his home in Troy, Pennsylvania after thirty years of service as a missionary in China. He was stationed for a period of years when he first came to China in Kiangsu province, later going to Chungking. He and his family lived at Chungking about twelve years and for the past two years he has been stationed at Chengtu, capital of Szechuen province.

STOP AT ICHANG

It was in the last week in June that Mr. and Mrs. Hooker and their two boys arrived in Ichang, having come down the Yangtsze from Chungking as the first stop of their long journey back to the United States. At Ichang they were the guests for several days of Mr. Herbert Squires, a missionary at Ichang, and they planned to board the river steamer Kiangwo, which was to take them to Hankow, on June 28.

On that afternoon the family of four with Mr. Squires boarded a sampan to get to the Kiangwo, which was anchored in the stream. Recent high water at Ichang has made the river more than ordinarily treacherous with a current running about four and a half knots an hour.

Mr. Squires brought with him three life belts. He had wanted to put them in the sampan, he said later, as the river daily was growing more dangerous, but he did not bring them in anticipation of any danger on that particular day. Mr. Squires had put on one of the life belts and Mrs. Hooker put on another.

GIVES BELT TO SONS

Mr. Squires and Mrs. Hooker occupied a front seat in the board and Mr. Hooker was seated behind them. When the third life belt was handed to Mr. Hooker he passed it back to the two boys who were in the body of the sampan where the luggage had been placed.

As the sampan with the little party was nearing the steamer a large lighter swung into view around the bow of the steamer and as it bore down upon them it was seen that a tautened hawser that ran from the lighter to the shore would sweep against the sampan. The boatman made every effort to escape from the hawser and the party in the sampan shouted to occupants of the lighter to cast off the hawser but this was not done. The heavily laden sampan went over in a flash when the hawser struck it and all of the party were thrown into the water under the eyes of scores of onlookers on the steamer and on the American gunboat Elcano, anchored nearby.

WORK OF RESCUE

Boats were immediately put out from the steamer and from the gunboat and one of these picked up Mrs. Hooker who was held up by her life belt. A little later Charles, the older boy, was taken from the overturned sampan to which he had clung by another boat. Mr. Squires had floated down the river to another sampan which rescued him. It was found then that Mr. Hooker and John, the younger boy, were missing, but when some time later the capsized sampan was being righted it was found that the missing boy had clung to a seat under the overturned craft and had hung on there, being able to breath in the small air space that formed between the water and the bottom of the boat. He was rescued unharmed, but all efforts made then and subsequently to find Mr. Hooker's body proved fruitless.

Mrs. Hooker has cancelled the booking on the steamer on which the family intended to sail and she and her two sons will remain in China probably until fall when she and her sons will sail for the United States.

$46,000 Seized In Bold Daylight Highway Robbery

Police Arrest Two Men And Recover Part Of Loot

A $46,000 highway robbery which occurred in broad daylight on Pakhoi Road Thursday had part of its sequel enacted yesterday when two men were charged in the Mixed Court.

The robbery occurred shortly before 11 a.m. A coolie was proceeding in a ricsha from the Tai Chong Cigarette Company offices, 70, Avenue Edward VII, to the Ningpo Provincial Bank, carrying two packages containing $5,050 in bank notes and $41,795 in Chinese bank orders. His story to the police was that he was stopped by three men who demanded to know what was in the packages. He leaped from the ricsha and ran into an alleyway but was pursued, caught and threatened with a knife and the parcels were snatched away.

Chief Detective Inspector Eck and a Chinese detective sergeant went quickly to the scene of the robbery and on information received located two men in a tea shop on Chekiang Road. They were found to be in possession of $2,000 in notes and $7,450 worth of bank orders. The men are said to have confessed the robbery, but to have denied that a third man participated or that any more money was taken. The coolie dropped the other packet when he was being chased, they declare.

The case was remanded for one week to permit further investigation. Payment of the missing bank orders has been stopped.

Soviet Buys Rice - And Makes Plows

(Rosta News Agency)

Moscow, June 25.—Soviet Russia imported from Persia 300,000 poods of rice and 10,000 poods of other cereals during the month of May.

By order of the Council of People's Commissars, the Supreme Council of Economy is undertaking the manufacture on a large scale of farming implements. 1,500 ploughs have been delivered and about 2,000 more will be ready before the approach of autumn.

Slaying Of French Officer Brings German Apology

Foreign Minister Tells Of Efforts To Bring About Amity

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, July 7.—The Foreign Minister, Dr. Rosen, has apologised to the French Ambassador on behalf of the German Government for the incident at Beuthen on Tuesday last when the German inhabitants of the town made a demonstration in the course of which a French major was killed and two French sergeants slightly injured. Dr. Rosen added that the Government was endeavoring to secure work for the volunteers in Upper Silesia with a view to preventing deplorable incidents which were hampering its efforts to improve the relations between France and Germany.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent, or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent, or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy and retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse. It causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"I have used your Castoria in cases of colic in children and have found it the best medicine of its kind on the market."
J. E. SIMPSON, M. D., Chicago, Ill.

"Castoria is good for children and I frequently prescribe it, and always obtain the desired result."
F. GERALD BLATTNER, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.

"A medicine so valuable and beneficial for children as your Castoria is deserves the highest praise. I find it in use everywhere."
J. S. ALEXANDER, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"I have prescribed Castoria to families for several years. It is all right. Mothers like it, for children will take it without any trouble."
C. A. WILSON, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"Have used your Castoria on various occasions in suitable cases and have found it a palatable and efficient laxative, especially in the various diseases of childhood."
CHAS. EDWARD GARDINER, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Your Castoria is a splendid remedy for children, known the world over. I use it in my practice and have no hesitancy in recommending it for the complaints of infants and children."
J. A. BOARMAN, M. D., Kansas City, Mo.

Shanghai Men Offered Places As Secretaries May Not Accept

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Manila, June 25 (by mail).—A campaign to enlarge the Manila branch of the Chinese Y.M.C.A. was launched yesterday with the election of Mr. C. F. Li of Shanghai as executive secretary here.

It is stated that Mr. Li has been a secretary of the Shanghai Y.M.C.A. for several years, and that he was recommended for his new position by the Shanghai and National Y.M.C.A. authorities. He received special training in the United States. He is expected to arrive in Manila in August.

Mr. P. C. Tan, who was graduated this year from St. John's College, Shanghai, will come to Manila next year to head the educational program, the local branch also announced.

Messrs. Li and Tan have not been formally notified of their appointments and will probably not accept. They were unofficially offered the posts in June but since then have received no notification from Manila.

Mr. Li is planning his work for the fall in China, Mr. Tan will be remembered as chairman of the student tag day held here to raise funds for the North China famine relief funds.

STOCK EXCHANGES IN FRENCHTOWN TO BE LICENSED

Tax Is Imposed On Profits In New Regulations Of Municipal Council

The French Municipal Council has promulgated seven regulations governing the operation of stock and brokerage exchanges in the French Concession. A translation of the regulations follow:

1.—No exchange is to be established without the approval of the French Consulate-General.

2.—After sanction has been secured from the French Consulate, the exchange should register with the registrar of the French Mixed Court together with a copy of the articles of association of the exchange.

3.—The exchange must comply with all municipal, police and traffic bye-laws as well as commercial laws.

4.—Any exchange which violates any of the three articles mentioned above shall be liable to be punished by either a fine of not less than $5 and not more than $1,000 or suspension of business.

5.—After securing the sanction from the French Consulate-General, the exchange should procure a license as well as a certificate for carrying on its business by the payment of a fee of Tls. 100.

6.—No exchange is to carry on its business until it has complied with all the above regulations and secured the license.

7.—A portion of the net profit of the exchange shall be subscribed to the fund established by the Council for educational and medical purpose after the exchange's accounts are balanced by the end of every fiscal year.

Japanese Would Have Anfu Loans Made Liabilities

General Chen Chuin-ming, commander in chief of the Cantonese army and Civil Governor of Kwantung, yesterday addressed a telegram to THE CHINA PRESS and other newspapers in Shanghai, stating that the Japanese financier, Nishimara, is now in Peking trying to persuade the administration to liquidate all loans contracted between the Anfuites and Japan.

The message stated that as Peking is urgently in need of money, it is most probable that it will allow the Nipponese banker to dictate his terms. General Chen desires to be placed on record as saying that the people of China would not be bound to satisfy obligations arising out of these secret negotiations and hopes that the nations of world will not be alarmed when one day China announces to the world that she will ignore all loans which are more or less secret contracted between Peking and Japan.

SHANGHAI HOPES TO PLAY HURON THIS AFTERNOON; IT'S MERELY A WEATHER QUESTION

Flagship, With Albany, Leaves Port Tuesday; Today And Tomorrow Last Chances For Play With Those Nines; Games Will Be Keen Struggles

Cy Wilhoit's men will have their last try at the baseball team of the flagship Huron this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock provided the weather man's predictions fail as usual. He predicts thunderstorms and all kinds of poor baseball weather for today, so it is more than likely that ideal playing weather will prevail.

The last time the weather man forecasted wet weather on a scheduled baseball date was on Saturday last when the Huron and the Albany were scheduled to play off their elimination game for the privilege of representing the Navy in the Fourth of July game against Shanghai. The next day the sun shone brightly. So here's hoping.

The Huron, on last advice from the navy men, pulls down the river sometime on Tuesday with the cruiser Albany for Chefoo and the summer target practice. If the game today is not possible, we may bid goodbye to the Admiral's nine at this reading.

If the game is played today local fans will see a struggle that will be worth while missing tea for. The Huron men are all cut up over their defeat on the Fourth, when the cup game was lost 10-3, when their pitching mainstay was knocked out of the box.

They point to their weakness at second base in that game as their alibi, and they say that now they have that second-base hole plugged up and two new pitchers available they are ready to play a final game that will make Shanghai remember them until they return to port and then some.

LARKIN ON SECOND

Dick Larkin, formerly manager of the Huron team will cover second in today's game. He played here early this season in the first game that the flagship played ashore, but has been training since then for a boxing bout-smoker, which due to many obstacles has fallen through. He is now ready to get back into the infield for his exercise.

The Huron men are more optimistic and confident of baseball success today than since their Asiatic fleet team was broken up. Weaver, who has done such effective work for the Navy, can be safely farmed out into the outfield with Draper and Hawks in shape, and with the infield secured at all four corners they are certain of the long end.

Speaking of the Huron's infield reminds one of that spot at short, so cleverly covered by Gage during the first days of the present season. King, the little fellow who has handled that post since Gage's departure, has made good with such a crash that he has surprised even his own shipmates. King never murmured a word about baseball knowledge or ability until he saw that he was needed. Then he offered himself very modestly, and now the whole ship is talking about him and his work. He saved the Huron nine at a critical time. Larkin it is expected will fill out the last unsteady spot and make the big boat's nine as strong as ever it was.

Tomorrow the schedule calls for a game between Shanghai and the Albany, commencing at 3:30 p.m. Should today's game be impossible it may be that the Huron will be taken on in a doubleheader.

SAYS "BUGS" Baer:

THE MAN WHO KNEW NO FEAR

Used To Tear Bouquets Of Violets Apart In Delirium Of Horticulture

BY 'BUGS' BAER

Dear Me: You can't fool me about Gink Fowler. I'm too dumb. Gink met the most graceful fighter out of the ring—the Slim Prince. If my memory doesn't serve me it was eight rounds before the fight started. The Prince pasted a full house so hard on Gink's mush that Mr. Fowler trimmed off all the housetops in the entire residential district of the Hackensack meadows. Incidentally, this is how bungalows came into fashion.

Yours with the Volstead mumps on my hip,

GEORGE GENTHON,
Passaic, N. J.

We refuse to print the above letter. It contains facts that are out of place in this column. The bird who wrote that shows by his erratic evasions of the truth that he knows absolutely something what he is talking about. He never even saw Gink Fowler, Roughtown's premier battler, a man who had a face that only a vegetarian could love.

Power just bristled loose from his presence. His personality was one of dominating uncouthness. When he dove for pearls in his oyster stew, the rest of the lunchroom hokies stood up on their beards and cheered silently. Gink didn't ostracise his opponents in the ring. He Balkanised them. One terrific fluff of knuckles hurtling through the air—then all was still like a dog fight.

Gink never used his best punches on his prey. He used to reach way down in the bottom of his glove and pick out a second hand punch. He never sent a boy on a man's errand. Nobody ever knew who was stealing the lamb chops from the neighbor's watchdog. They sent for seventeen detectives. One night, they heard a terrific rallyhooing and the entire population of Roughtown fled to investigate. They found the dog had caught sixteen detectives, one on each tooth. But the seventeenth got away with the veal cutlet. Or was it a porterhouse steak? We forget in the excitement.

Old Man Perkins was down at the grocery end of his tailor store, when Gink blew in on the wings of a rutile. Perk made a slap at Gink and Gink, who was so crosseyed that he could read two books at once, just let the blow slide past his tongue and took up the recoil on his palate. From then on, you might say that the social season had really started for the season, and another Winter's gayety was on.

Water Poloists Have Practise

The usual Friday afternoon's practice game of water polo took place yesterday at the Rowing Club's bath, Mr. B. Wallin again acting as coach and referee. The sides were selected with a view to pitting the club backs against the club forwards, and the backs got the better of the contest winning by five goals to one. Each of the "backs'" forwards scored one goal, J. E. Henry, F. Henry and J. Buys, while Berthet at back netted two goals. The only score for the other side was made by Brodie.

Again Harris starred in goal for the backs' side, some of his saves being quite extraordinarily good.

The following were the sides:

Blues: H. E. Harris (goal), R. W. MacCabe and R. A. Berthet (backs), I. D. Macdonald (half-back), J. E. Henry, F. Henry and J. Buys (forwards).

Whites: S. A. Starling (goal), I. R. Allen and J. Krygsman (backs), H. D. Rodger (half-back), A. P. Goldman, E. A. Brodie and L. Goldman (forwards).

Giauque Wallops Homer At Tsingtao With Sacks Loaded, Beating Japanese

Former Shanghai Man Helps British Cigarette Team From Ershihlipu With Elsie McCormick Watching The Game

By Elsie McCormick

Tsingtao, July 5.

IN the beginning we must confess that we never were a very expert baseball fan. By long and assiduous attendance at games, however, we picked up certain points about the sport that help us to hold our own in a crowd. For instance, we learned that we should duck when a foul ball flies over the bleachers, that the person who stands behind the Man in the Iron Mask and holds up his fingers isn't trying to stop a car, and that the player who fans isn't necessarily any cooler.

With all this information to guide us, we attended the Fourth of July baseball fiesta staged at Tsingtao between the British Cigarette Company's aggregation from Ershihlipu and an all-star Japanese team culled from the choicest nines of the city.

The Japanese team assumed prima donna privileges by arriving an hour and a half late. We spent the 5,400 seconds of waiting perched on the top row of the grandstand, wondering what was going on at the tea-dance back in the hotel and watching our new organdie grew as limp in the fog as a jelly-fish away from home. And we had worn it for the special benefit of that B. C. C. team, too.

KIDS PLAY CATCH

Well, after all the small boys of Tsingtao had had turns playing catch on the diamond and the faithful coolie who presided over a handsome brick range at the side of the field had boiled up several cups of tea for the waiting players, the Japanese cantered up in a flock of ricshas, ready to barbecue the invaders and get back to town in time for their evening bowls of seaweed and rice.

It didn't turn out that way, however. We wish we could tell the story of it round by round, including the clinches, but our brand of baseball writing belongs distinctively to the impressionist school and we were impressed chiefly by the score and a startling orange gown down in the first row.

Even a non-expert like us, however, couldn't fail to note that Mr. Thackston of Ershihlipu was doing some remarkable work out there on the mound and that he had the wiry Japanese pitcher entirely outclassed.

GIAUQUE HITS IT

One of the most speciacular features of the day was a home-run batted by Mr. Charlie Giauque of Shanghai, who was playing with the B. C. C. team.

Mr. Giauque obligingly understudied Babe Ruth at a time when three men were on the bases, so that the net result of his heavy swing was a score of 4-0 in favor of the foreigners. For a moment there was a grand flourish of legs around the diamond and several cases of near-apoplexy among the Nipponese rooters.

The final result of the game was a score of 7-5, with Ershihlipu on the heavy end. The victory was much more marked than the figures indicate, however, for the B. C. C. group had only a personnel of fifteen men out of which to make a team, while the Japanese nine was drawn from among the best players of a baseball-mad city.

In view of the victory, we were just as glad that we didn't go to the tea-dance that practically all the best dancers were out on the baseball diamond, anyway.

The Ershihlipu line-up was as follows: J. B. Babbitt, right field; G. S. Schless, second base; D. W. Massey, shortstop; Giauque, third base; J. B. Farmer, center field; B. E. Thackston, pitcher; C. C. Vines, catcher; E. W. Young, left field; T. C. Westbrock, first base.

C. Vestal, J. S. Love, R. S. Atkinson also horned into the game for a while.

New York, July 7.—Carpentier expects to sail for Europe on July 14, returning to the United States in the early autumn to fight Tom Gibbons.

MOVIES OF FIGHT STAGED JULY 4 ARE COMING HERE

Film Of World's Title Bout Between Dempsey And Carpentier Secured

Moving pictures of the July Fourth scrap between Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier will be shown here early in August, the rights for China, Hongkong and Macao having been secured at considerable expense by Pathe Orient, Ltd.

Manager Georges Weis said yesterday that he contracted for the pictures several months ago and requested the complete films, showing the crowds, preliminaries, the men in training and the movies of the actual four rounds during which Dempsey was convincing Carpentier that the title was not to change hands.

Bob Eddy Married In Yonkers In June

Robert Lewis Eddy, better known to Shanghai baseball followers as "Bob," the southpaw twirler who played here two years ago, is now batting in the matrimonial league.

Eddy was married on June 15 to Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Willis Phelps of Yonkers, New York, and is now living at 103 Alta Avenue, Yonkers.

While in Shanghai Eddy was a member of the staff of Messrs. Andersen, Meyer and Company's insurance department.

LANCASHIRE CRICKETERS LOSE TO AUSTRALIANS BY INNINGS AND 8 RUNS

Hampshire Beats Sussex; Yorkshire Wins From Northamptonshire; Gloucestershire Beats Derbyshire With Kent Winning From Worcestershire

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 7.—When the match between the Australian cricketers and Lancashire was resumed today, the Old Trafford ground was gaily decorated in honor of the Prince of Wales, who is at present touring Lancashire and paid a visit to the match this afternoon, being received by Lord Derby as President of the Lancashire Cricket Club. The weather was pleasantly sunny, and some 12,000 spectators were present.

The Australians, who had made 194 for six wickets in their first innings at the close of yesterday's play, were all out for 284, towards which Ryder contributed 56 and Hendry 51. James Tyldesley and Parkin shared the wickets, the former taking five for 87 and the latter five for 89.

The Lancashire batsmen, on going in a second time, made a promising start, but eventually collapsed in extraordinary fashion before the bowling of Gregory and Mailey, the last six wickets falling for 11 runs.

Sharp's contribution was 65. Gregory's analysis was five wickets for 59, and Mailey's four for 77.

The result was a win for the Australians by an innings and eight runs.

In other first-class matches concluded the results were as follows:

At Portsmouth.—Hampshire beat Sussex by an innings and 100 runs.

At Northampton.—Yorkshire beat Northamptonshire by an innings and 194.

At Derby.—Gloucestershire beat Derbyshire by 97.

At Worcester.—Kent beat Worcestershire by eight wickets.

AERO SOCIETY PLANS SERIES OF LECTURES

Will Also Take Up Customs Problem And Flying Rules

A program including a number of important and interesting features was adopted at the general meeting of the Shanghai Aeronautical Society, held at 10 Nanking Road Thursday evening.

A lecture series, consideration of the problem of passing airplanes through the Customs and the drawing up of flying rules to govern flights over Shanghai are among the activities outlined for the ensuing year.

It is hoped to begin the lecture series in the near future and the first talk will probably be given by Captain R. N. Swann, D.F.C., M.C., on "The Airplane as a Fighting Medium." Capt. Swann was nearly five years in France and has had wide experience in the field. Dr. Herbert Chatley is another of the lecturers expected to deliver one of the first discourses and is planning, tentatively, to consider the airplane from the viewpoint of its commercial advantages to China in general and Shanghai in particular. The lectures are to be given at regular periods in the South Room of the Town Hall and further particulars as to dates and subjects will be announced later.

The difficulties of passing airplanes through the Chinese Customs have been a serious factor here to date, instances of planes lying on the wharves for long periods having occurred, and the Government has indicated that it does not contemplate admitting any machines to the country other than those for government use. The secretary of the Society, Mr. P. S. Crovat, was instructed at the meeting to enter into correspondence with the Customs officials.

For the protection of the city the Society is considering the drawing up of rules to govern the movements of over-flying planes, the matter being turned over to a sub-committee. It is expected that the rules—which involve matters of height of flight, the passing of other machines, landing and ground regulation—will follow closely those laid down by the I. A. F. of England.

The meeting was presided over by Dr. H. Chatley, chairman, and among those attending were Messrs. Kyat Tong, G. F. Hankinson, W. E. Holland, A. Corrit, J. Schlisler and R. Wallace. Mr. J. H. Underwood's resignation as honorary secretary was accepted, the committee thanking him for his valuable services, and Mr. P. S. Crovat was invited to take over the office, accepted and was duly appointed.

Leaps Three Stories To Death In Theater

Suicide Jumps From Top Balcony In Hankow Road Playhouse

A sensational suicide which nearly created a panic in the Hankow Road Theater occurred shortly after midnight yesterday morning when a Chinese climbed over the third floor balustrade and hurtled to the ground floor just in front of the stage. Before making his leap he swallowed poison.

The suicide, a man of about 30, named Mau Nyi, occupied a seat at the extreme left of the top balcony. At just about midnight he was observed to take out a bottle, pour its contents into a tea cup, drink and hurl the cup away. Before anyone could prevent him he had climbed over the railing and jumped, striking upon his head in front of the first tier of ground floor seats. He was taken at once to the Shantung Road Hospital, where he died within a few minutes. The empty bottle was found, bearing a poison label.

From letters found upon the body it is evident that the deceased was out of work and in debt.

Burma Rice Is Put At Disposal Of India Alone

(Reuter's Service)

Spared Rod Causes Child Crime Wave

New York, May 28.—Parents of today were severely arraigned by Judge Alfred J. Talley of New York for their "sinful" negligence in failing to inflict corporal punishment upon their wayward sons. The situation which brought forth the Court's remarks arose when seventeen-year-old Leo B. Clark, of No. 80 Perry street, pleaded guilty to stealing an automobile.

"What has come over the children nowadays?" asked Judge Talley when the boy's attorney, Walter J. Kingsley pleaded for leniency because of the defendant's age. "It is amazing how many boys of seventeen appear in these courts, admitted criminals. The community would be astonished if the figures on this were made public."

Attorney Kingsley suggested that it was the aftermath of the war that caused these conditions, but Judge Talley was not satisfied with this explanation.

"No, Mr. Kingsley," said the Court, "it is the parents of New York who are responsible. There is too much sparing the rod. 'Honor thy father and thy mother' no longer receives attention from the children. They have amended that to 'Parents, obey thy children.'

"Children now escape punishment at home and at school, and as a result they start out in life with no respect for law and order. Let us have more of the rod and there won't be so much for the courts to do."

Sentence on Clark was suspended.

Huge Dreadnought Steered By Wireless

London, May 27.—Successful tests of a method by which dreadnoughts may be steered and controlled by wireless from a land station have been carried out by the British Admiralty in the Spithead and waters off Southampton.

Experiments have been going on for the past month with the utmost secrecy. Trials were first made with coastal patrol boats, then with larger vessels, and finally with the dreadnoughts.

The great dreadnought, without a single man aboard, but with steam up and with its steering apparatus connected with an automatic wireless receiving set, was sent out in the midst of the shipping in the busy Solent. At a speed varying from twelve to sixteen knots an hour, the great ship responded to every wireless "command."

The operator was able to maneuver the gigantic ship with the same ease as he did the tiny patrol boats.

The Admiralty officials are not discussing the tests, but it is learned that they have now planned additional tests by which battleships without crews or men aboard may be directed by airplanes and airships. They are also experimenting with the firing of guns by wireless.

Naval experts here hail the successful operation of the dreadnoughts by wireless as the greatest single advancement of a hundred years and are predicting manless navies for the future.

France Eager For Alliance With U.S.

Paris, June 6.—In a frank admission of the Allied desire permanently to entangle the United States in European politics, the Matin, editorially, foreshadows a strong diplomatic movement to revive the "Wilson pact" between the United States, France and England.

"The British Cabinet believes the moment opportune to reconstruct the Franco-British alliance on firm defensive principles," says the Matin.

"France will welcome such a move as being a necessary preliminary to a still larger Entente, not necessarily limited to Europe. Neither France nor England won the war alone—America decided their victory.

"However fine an entente cordiale may be, it will not replace an alliance of the three great powers, and it must not be considered by France unless the suspicion that it is an English move to wean France from America is abolished.

"Europe cannot live without the Franco-British entente, but the world cannot live without the United States, which is now the prop of civilisation, because it is not only the most disinterested but the most generous and most powerful nation in the universe."

New feelers put out unofficially by England caused excitement in France, where diplomats do not hesitate to assert that Lloyd George's policy will henceforth be to weld Europe solidly under his leadership for future resistance to the desires of America.

President Harding's move to establish a new league of nations is accepted in England as a challenge to Great Britain's political leadership of the world. French diplomats are declaring that England is only now desiring a hard and fast alliance with France because she hopes thereby to prevent France from siding with President Harding, which would mean the end of Lloyd George's political dictatorship.

The quotation presented herewith from the Matin shows the strong feeling on the part of many of France's most influential statesmen against any alliance with England that would involve the blind following of Downing Street by the Quai D'Orsay.

Husbands Agree To Swap Their Wives

Anderson, Ind., May 27.—William Muncey and Gordon Huffmann, warm friends and fellow laborers in the same factory, are about to trade wives. And it's all right with Mrs. Muncey and Mrs. Huffman.

The discovery that Huffman loved Mrs. Muncey and Muncey loved Mrs. Huffman and vice versa on both sides led to a visit to Judge Kittinger. The problem was how the "swap" could be arranged. Judge Kittinger suggested twin divorce bills.

Two divorce bills charging abandonment have been filed. A double wedding is expected later.

FIRE COST OF U. S.

Fires in the United States last year caused property damages approximating $500,000,000, according to the report of Charles L. Case, president of the National Board of Fire Underwriters. This loss, the report stated, was the heaviest in the history of the nation with one exception.

"It is a heavy charge on our commercial interests to have so large a burden of preventable loss," the report continued. "The country can never rise to the highest degree of prosperity and efficiency until we learn to reduce this enormous waste."

The Board decided to carry on during the coming year an intensive fire prevention campaign, and made an appropriation for this purpose.

A perfect Paint of smooth surface for Interior Wall Coating

The surface obtainable with this paint is smooth and flat, i.e., it is not a grainy, dead, lifeless finish, but of a velvety texture. It dries in a reasonably quick time, so that work can be carried out effectively, yet has the property of remaining open long enough to enable the worker to cover a large surface of wall without making laps or edges.

Excellent results with Super Durable Flat Finish are easily obtained irrespective of the skill of the user, and an elaborate preparation of the surface is usually quite unnecessary.

Super Durable Flat Finish has been tried on non-absorbent surfaces of all kinds and where distemper and oil paints have proved prone to shell or flake off, it has always adhered. It gives a lasting finish of surprising beauty.

1 Imperial Gallon covers about 130 square yards one coat.

Secrets of Beauty

PLEASE suggest something other than medicine to reduce my weight.—E.

Try walking for two hours out-of-doors every day at the rate of four miles an hour. If that is too drastic for you, walk one hour in the morning and then take the other hour's "stint" before bedtime. Also, eliminate one meal a day—preferably lunch. In six months' time you will be considerably surprised and pleased at the result.

HOW can I keep the corners of my mouth from drooping?—G. M.

Try to avoid sad or unpleasant thoughts. They, more than anything else, will remove those deep, almost ineradicable lines from your countenance. Think of pleasant things; the little, insignificant happenings of every day, whose sum total, when added up, increase so greatly the joy of life. Also, and this is no less important than the other, massage those lines upward every night with a good cold cream, patting it in gently with the fingers.

MY pleasure in wearing evening gowns is destroyed by two afflictions—a "swan" neck and a "duck" skin. Can you help me remedy these defects?—MARY S. F.

I would advise massaging that too thin neck every night before retiring with this preparation, which feeds the skin and the tissues underneath:

Lanolin	5 ounces
Spermaceti	½ ounce
Mutton tallow	5 ounces
Cocoanut oil	4 ounces
Oil of sweet almonds	4 ounces
Tincture of benzoin	1 dram
Extract of Portugal	4 ounces
Oil of neroli	20 drops

Use only the blandest, purest soap in your bath. That will soon overcome that roughness of the skin which some people call "goose-flesh." A few drops of benzoin in the morning bath-water will aid the cure.

KINDLY tell me what I may use to prevent my eyes from feeling so uncomfortable and looking so queer when I go out in the air.—G. E.

A daily bath in borax water is beneficial and has the advantage of always being convenient. A half a teaspoonful of borax dissolved in a little warm water and applied to the eyes daily with a soft cloth will give the eyes the strength they need. Another excellent eye-bath is this:

Witch hazel	1 gill
Rosewater	1 gill

IS there any way at all by which I can enlarge my bust?—ANN.

Give special attention to your diet. Take more flesh-forming foods; drink water freely; take long daily walks and sleep eight or nine hours every night. Massaging the bust gently with this flesh-building cream will likewise aid in adding the welcome "plumpness" to this region:

Oil of sweet almonds	2 ounces
Lanolin	1 ounce
Cocoanut oil	1 ounce
Spermaceti	½ ounce
White wax	½ ounce
Oil of rose geranium	5 drops

MY lower lip protrudes slightly, making me look "sulky," which is all wrong, as I'm really very sweet and gentle by nature. Can anything be done for this?—G. H. A.

It may be you have the habit of pursing your lips unduly, though if this was contracted when a child you may be entirely unconscious of it now. Try massaging the lower lip from the centre of the lip outward and upward. Use the simple stroke movement, applying, meanwhile, the astringent pomade given below:

Cold cream	1 ounce
Pulverized tannin	1 gram
Alkanet chips	1 gram

The Unhappy Love of a Great Composer

A DELICATE, dreamy-eyed youth once met a most fascinating siren who had taken French leave of her husband and gone to Paris to find the gay freedom she craved.

The youth was Chopin, the great composer, and the siren was Aurore Dudevant, known to the literary world as George Sand.

Already a distinguished French poet had met a tragic end through the charms of Mme. Dudevant, and Chopin, instinctively fearing a similar fate, was loath to meet this alluring lady. But fate one day brought them together, and from the moment the great musician's eyes rested upon her his doom was sealed.

"It seemed as if this fragile being was absorbed and consumed by his affection," wrote George Sand in describing Chopin's subsequent infatuation.

"No amount of suffering was sufficient to discourage him. He could enter upon a new phase, that of woe; but the phase of coldness he could never arrive at. It would have been indeed a phase of physical agony—for his love was his life, and, delicious or bitter, he had not the power of withdrawing himself a single moment from its domination."

For ten years these two geniuses continued infatuated with one another. At times the sensitive musician is said to have felt severe moral scruples over the unconventionality of the attachment, and, had Mme. Dudevant consented, he would have made her his lawful wife.

At last she persuaded him to go to the island of Majorca with her, and here Chopin's health began failing him.

Now came the test of her affections. Passionate and loving as she had been to her genius lover when he was well, she was no longer so to him as an invalid. She would complain about having to nurse him, and Chopin's sensitive nature would sense to the quick every little change in her manner toward him. Moreover, he wished constantly to right the wrong they were living, blaming only himself and wishing devoutly to atone for what he considered his injustice to this woman.

But while these thoughts and plans were in his mind, Madame Dudevant, having long since grown weary of her lover, was only waiting for a chance to break off the attachment.

Chopin little dreamed as he lay tortured with thoughts of their future that other men were to tread the path that had led him to her heart and that already he was an old shoe whose sole had literally been worn out. Shortly after this the lady left him and they were permanently separated.

About a year later, however, George Sand appeared to have regretted her cruel treatment of the young musician. Fate once more threw them together at the house of a mutual friend. There were a number of people in the room, and George Sand seeing Chopin walked up to him and held out her hand.

"Frederic," she murmured, in a voice meant for his ears alone.

He gazed at her a moment as if not sure that it was she. His lips moved ever so slightly as if to utter some word; then into his eyes came a haunting sadness, his handsome face grew deadly pale, and without a word he turned and left the room. He never saw her again.

Chopin loved no other. An intimate friend of his says that he spoke frequently and almost by preference of George Sand, without bitterness or condemnation. Tears always filled his eyes when he mentioned her name, and with a kind of bitter sweetness he gave himself up to memories of her.

Tested Cooking Recipes

By Mary Lee Swann,

The Well-Known Writer and Lecturer on Cooking.

Sour Cream Ice Cream.

ADD 1½ cups sugar to 1¾ cups strained strawberry pulp. Let stand an hour or more. Add 1 quart thick sour cream. Freeze, using 3 parts ice to 1 part salt.

One-Egg Cake.

CREAM together 1 cup sugar, ½ cup sour cream and 1 egg. Add a pinch of salt, ½ teaspoon soda dissolved in 2-3 cup milk and 2 cups flour sifted with 1 teaspoon cream of tartar. Add ½ teaspoon vanilla. Bake in a medium oven.

Pie Crust.

MIX and sift 2 cups flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon cream of tartar and ¼ teaspoon soda. Add ½ cup sour cream and enough cold water to make a light dough. Work the cream in as gently as possible, as stirring will toughen the pastry. Bake in a quick oven.

Pie Crust With Chicken Fat.

SUBSTITUTE chicken fat for lard in your favorite pie crust recipe, using perhaps a little more chicken fat. The result will be a delicious flaky pastry. The fat should not be flavored with onion, bay leaf or other seasoning. If the chicken is to be cooked with these things remove the fat before cooking and try out.

Cookies.

CREAM 1 cup sugar, ½ cup sour cream and 1 egg. Beat well. Add a small package of salted peanuts which have been passed through meat grinder. Dissolve ½ teaspoon soda in ½ cup skimmed milk and add enough flour to make a stiff dough. Sift 1 teaspoon cream of tartar in the first ½ cup of flour. Roll thin and bake in a quick oven until delicately browned.

Vanilla Wafers.

THESE are made the same as the plain cookies except that the peanuts are omitted and a half teaspoon of vanilla added.

Sour Cream Omelet.

BEAT 5 eggs until light. Add ½ teaspoon salt, a dash of paprika and 1-3 cup sour cream. Melt 1 tablespoon butter in an omelet pan and cook the omelet in it very gently.

Waffles.

MIX and sift 1¼ cups flour, ¼ teaspoon salt and ½ teaspoon soda. Add 2 well-beaten egg yolks mixed with ¼ cup sour cream and ¾ cup sour milk. Add 2 stiffly beaten egg whites. Cook in well oiled waffle irons. The irons should be hot before the batter is poured in.

Blueberry Cream Cake.

CREAM ½ cup butter and add 1 cup sugar gradually, beating constantly. Add ½ cup thin cream, sweet or slightly sour, and 2 well-beaten eggs. Add 2 cups flour sifted with 1 teaspoon soda and 3 teaspoons cream of tartar. Stir in 1 cup blueberries. Bake in a shallow cake tin, cut in squares and serve hot.

Sour Cream Pie.

MIX 1 cup sour cream with ½ cup sugar, 2 egg yolks and a dash each of cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves and 1½ tablespoons sifted flour. Beat well together. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly until thick enough for pie filling. Turn into a baked crust, cover with meringue and place in the oven long enough to brown the meringue delicately.

CAN YOU CONSERVE YOUR PROFITS?

Many who have a genius for making money have but little ability to conserve it. The financial results of several profitable years may be wiped out by one year of business depression.

By a "living trust" executed during prosperous times you can assure those dependent on you the benefits of the surplus you then possess.

Some of the objectives a "living trust" can help you provide for are:

- A steady income to your wife
- Income to be used for the education of your children
- Income regularly payable to a charity
- Income payable to yourself for life
- To provide income under divorce decree or separation agreement
- To provide an income for intended husband or wife

U.S. SOLVES RADIO STEERING OF SHIPS

Crewless Vessel Operated By Wireless Possibility In New War

Washington, June 3.—The secret of practically unlimited radio control for warships has been solved by American genius. This revelation was made by Rear Admiral Robert S. Griffin, chief of the Bureau of Engineering of the Navy Department, in an exclusive interview with Universal Service.

It now is possible to send a crewless vessel, phantomlike as far as radio impulses will carry. For instance, in the approaching battleship vs. airplane tests off the Virginia Capes, the Iowa will be guided by radio from the battleship Ohio. The apparatus aboard the latter will be of sufficient strength to direct the Iowa for a distance of 500 miles.

Were the Iowa to be controlled from the great radio station of the Navy Department at Arlington, Va., it would be possible to send her across the ocean.

A curious valve of secret construction is the device which makes such a performance possible.

"Construction of such a valve was the one great difficulty the Navy Department had to overcome," said Admiral Griffin, "but it is traditional of the American Navy that the difficulty was overcome."

The details of the device cannot, of course, be revealed. It can be said in a general way, however, that the valves are attached to three parts of the machinery—the fuel engine, the water engine, and the steering gear. Thus the vessel not only is guided, but is fueled and watered by radio.

It is believed that the same device could be applied to a giant torpedo, which could be launched at a foe no matter how far distant.

Admiral Griffin is inclined to believe that this principle is not likely, in the near future at least, to be applied to whole navies. Commenting on the prediction of Marconi, in a recent Universal Service cable dispatch, of a great combat between manless superdreadnaughts, Admiral Griffin said:

BOTH FANTASY AND FACT

"Marconi's suggestion has elements of both fantasy and fact. Assuming what is not improbable—that the application of the principle developed by our Navy for radio control will be indefinitely developed—there is nothing to prevent the clash of manless navies.

"The utility of such bloodless contest, however, might be doubted. There would be no loss of life and, as far as we know now, no power to reload the gun after the first terrific discharge. The exceptional result, of course, might be that one of the navies might be annihilated by the initial discharges in the colossal battle.

"As a theory of possible progress in naval warfare, however, the Marconi prediction is not altogether fanciful. It has in it enough of possibility and enough of probability to be considered gravely."

Other naval experts said Marconi's idea of sending a monster torpedo a distance of, say, 5,000 miles, is a greater probability than that of the manless and bloodless armageddon. One expert said:

"The availability of such a torpedo demands only a little more advance in the actual work of construction.. So far we have stood fast to the air flask as the motive power. The whole problem of naval warfare will be revolutionised as soon as we discover a really safe means of propelling an enormous torpedo, filled with a vast quantity of powerful explosives, to a distance only commensurate with the supply of radio force available. There is little doubt that this will yet be done."

This Boy Veritable Jekyll And Hyde

St. Louis, May 27.—St. Louis boasts a fourteen-year-old Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde—and a winner, too—in the person of Joe Thimkus, a ward of the East St. Louis probation officer.

Joe was in every way a model boy. He went to school regularly, studied hard and behaved unusually well. He joined a troop of Boy Scouts and was in bed every night by 9 o'clock. The probation officer began to think that Joe's slip from in his having been handed over to the law, had been a misstep and that Joe was again a good boy.

Then Joe suddenly spoke up and told the officers that during the two weeks past, while under the care of the probation officers, he had participated in no less than thirteen robberies all between the hours of 7 and 8:30 o'clock.

Joe and his companion, Joe Chaklon, also fourteen, took a policeman to the several houses they had "visited" while their occupants had been at the movies. The boys had stolen revolvers, jewelry and money, the estimated total being placed at between $400 and $500.

SLAVEY ISSUES MAGNA CHARTA

Romford, Eng., May 8.—The Magna Charta of the Servant Girl has been issued. The Romford Juvenile Employment Committee has drafted up a list of suggestions which householders are asked to adopt when engaging servants. These are:

Eight and one-half hours working day.

Three and one-half hours a day for recreation.

Two and three-quarter hours a day for meals.

Every Sunday evening off for church service.

Every alternate Sunday off after midday.

Two weeks' annual holiday after a year's service.

These suggestions are considered outrageous and revolutionary by the British housewife, who is accustomed to keeping three or four servants, all of whom are on duty most of the time. Doubtless the last clause will command the greatest attention from American housewives.

The servants demand a minimum wage of $1.75 a week!

Irish Think 'Der Tag' Is Race Tip

Dublin, May 5.—Ireland is still laughing over "Der Tag." But it is really no laughing matter. The Freeman's Journal, to mark the appointed day for the coming into force of the Irish Home Rule act, issued a poster on which was printed in large type the simple words:

DER
TAG

Unfortunately, it happened that on the day the poster appeared a horse named Der Tag was running at the Curragh races. Newspapers in Dublin furnish exhaustive racing charts, and the sport-loving Irish at once assumed that the poster was meant for a racing tip. They bet their last farthings on Der Tag, and when the horse limped in near the end of the string hastened to the newspapers offices demanding explanation.

Now they are expressing their opinion of editors in general, and particularly those who mix up details such as Home Rule with the serious business of horse racing.

BAN CARDS AND DANCE

Greenfield, Mo., May 21.—The Cumberland Presbyterian Church today recorded unalterable opposition to card playing, dancing and Sunday baseball and condemned modern women's dress and immoral motion picture films.

"Too many in the pulpit and people are looking with some degree of allowance on the card table, the dance and the miserable debauching modern dress. Sunday baseball and obscene motion picture shows," said a resolution adopted by the General Assembly of the Denomination.

GLASS MAKES FISH HELP HOOK SELF

Oswego, N. Y., June 2.—No more empty baskets for fishermen. That's what the invention of J. F. Anderson, of Minetto—a hook with bait attached—promises. For some months Anderson, a well-known angler, has been experimenting with a small looking glass that goes into the water just behind his baited hook.

The fish, attracted by the reflected light from the mirror, investigates. Then he sees a big angle worm squirming in the water and the reflection of another fish in the mirror about to snatch it away. It becomes a question of who gets it first, and the result is that the sucker is hooked.

Earle W. Brown, State game warden, today advised Mr. Anderson that there was nothing in the State laws to prevent the use of the new device.

HAUNTS HOUSE TO KEEP DOWN RENT

Syracuse, N. Y., June 3.—Will Lieutenant Cleveland W. McDermott, heroic Syracuse aviator, killed in the Indian Head, Md. air catastrophe, and for whom military funeral services will be held tomorrow, keep one of the strangest death pacts that has ever been revealed?

Lieutenant H. W. Sheridan, the closest buddy of the dead airman, is confident that Lieutenant McDermott will do so. The pact, sealed just before Lieutenant McDermott left his brother officer to engage on the last flight, calls for the return of Lieutenant McDermott's spirit from "the other side."

Lieutenant Sheridan told of the pact today as added proof of the premonition of McDermott that his death was near.

"Mack came up to me and remarked, 'Sherry, yet's make a mutual agreement'," said Sheridan today to the New York Journal staff man. "I told him that I was willing, and then he said, 'Let's agree that whichever of us dies first, he will haunt the other fellow's house to keep the rent down.' We shook hands on it."

His Medals Stolen, Ludendorff Scowls

Berlin, May 5.—Unkind persons in Berlin are giving the following explanation of Ludendorff's grim countenance at the funeral of the ex-Kaiserine:

It is said that Ludendorff came on from Munich to attend the funeral. He was in full uniform, but on arriving at Potsdam found that all his medals, which had been packed in special cases for the ceremony, had been stolen en route. The order of the Iron Cross (First Class), which the Kaiser had pinned on the field marshal's breast with his own hands, was gone, and so were the many other minor decorations, stars and ribbons he has been awarded.

Every other officer present wore a long string of decorations dating from the days of militaristic power, and Ludendorff, not to be outdone, was forced to pay a hasty visit to a pawn shop, where he was able to replace most of the stolen medals.

Doctor Says High Heels Help Feet

London, May 27.—Out of a statement that high heels are best for women, made by Dr. W. H. Trethowan, M. B., F. R. I. C. S., may develop one of the most unique races ever staged.

"High heels are advantageous in supporting weak feet," Dr. Trethowan told members of the Institute of Hygiene. "The strain on the long arch of the foot must necessarily lessen in proportion as the heel is raised."

"You've got to show me," said a Manchester business man, A. R. Edwards. "Put up or shut up. I'll bet you a woman cannot walk naturally with high heeled shoes. I'll enter two women wearing low-heeled shoes against two women selected by you wearing highheeled shoes and let them compete in a twenty-mile walking race."

Edwards says he has his champions already picked. One is twenty-eight and unmarried. The other is thirty and is the mother of five children. The result would be judged by the speed of the walkers and the condition of their feet at the end of the race.

Dr. Trethowan has not answered the challenge bet, but his friends expect him to come forward with volunteers to demonstrate the efficacy of the Cuban heel. He advocates ballroom dancing, in addition to high heels, to achieve a correct walking posture.

"Modern dancing," he says, "tends to turn the toes in and thus cure knockness."

Gram Of Radium Is Given Mme. Curie

Washington, May 21.—Mme. Marie Curie, the Franco-Polish scientist, discoverer of radium who received a gram of that substance recently from President Harding, set in motion today the machinery of the new low temperature laboratory of the Bureau of Mines. A distinguished gathering of government officials and prominent scientists from all parts of the country was present to welcome Mme. Curie and witness the dedication ceremonies.

Owing to fatigue which made it impossible for her to remain at the laboratory more than a few minutes, Mme. Curie was unable to deliver a dedicatory address. The ceremonies were curtailed, Mme. Curie replying briefly to addresses of welcome by Dr. H. Foster Bain, director of the bureau, and Dr. R. B. Moore, its chief chemist. Later she pressed a button that set in motion the complicated machinery of the laboratory.

On behalf of Gordon Kimball, of Ouray, Col., Mme. Curie was presented with a large specimen of carnotite, said by scientists to be one of the finest specimens of that radium bearing ore ever obtained in the United States. She also was presented with a bottle of ore, forwarded by Mr. Kimball, part of the first shipment of carnotite ore ever made in the United States. It was mined in 1898 before its radium bearing values were known. Mme. Curie said both specimens would be placed in her museum in Paris.

DEAR SIR,

Due to the fact that we are FAIL TO MAKE PROFIT by using a engine, which by its SLOWNESS in work, EXPENSIVE in charges and also DIRTY and NOISY. The engine we are now using is 12-h, p. Having learned that an ELECTRIC MOTOR is a HASTY and ENERGETIC worker, it works QUIETLY, expends ECONOMICALLY, locates only a SMALL SPACE, and is EASY TO OPERATE. By the above several GOODNESS we would like to make a change and it might satisfy us when taking into use. Hope you will send us one for our benefit at your earliest convenience.

Very truly yours,

WHY try to talk with spirits through a ouija board when you can talk to thousands of real live folks through a CHINA PRESS Want Ad?

Messages sent over the ouija board route seldom have definite results. They don't mean anything.

Use the CHINA PRESS way and talk with real folks.

Use Want Ads to sell merchandise or to sell your services.

Conseil D'Administration Municipale De La Concession Francaise de Changhai

MUNICIPAL LOAN OF 1921

20,000 debentures of Tls. 100 each).

Rate of interest 8% per annum

The "Conseil d'Administration Municipale de la Concession Francaise de Changhai" hereby invite subscriptions for 20,000 debentures of Tls. 100 each, according to the resolution passed at their General Meeting on May 30, 1921.

The conditions on which the Debenture Certificates will be issued are:—

1°—The Debenture Certificates are transferable, and the person whose name is entered in the Register of Debenture Certificate or Certificates, shall alone be recognised and treated by the Council as the lawful and rightful holder and owner of such Debenture Certificate or Certificates.

2°—The loan will be redeemable at par (Tls. 100) in not less than 10 years and not more than 30 years, from 1st July, 1931 and according to the figures determinated by the Council.

3°—The loan will bear interest at 8% per annum, payable on the 30th day of June and 31st of December in each year, when interest warrants will be issued to the registered owners.

4°—The property and income of the Municipality, deducting those which serve as security provided in the Municipal Loans of 1903, 1911, 1914 and 1916 are the security for the repayment of the money advanced and for the interest thereon in the present loan.

The Members of the French Municipal Council are not personally liable in any way for the payment of either principal or interests.

5°—Applications for debentures will be received at the Secretary's Office, Rue du Consulat.

A cheque representing the amount of debentures asked for must be deposited at the same time.

6°—Applications for Debentures under par will not be recognised by the Council.

7°—For further informations, apply to Mr. P. LEGENDRE, Secretary, French Municipal Council.

Shanghai, 1st July, 1921.
P. LEGENDRE,
39234 Secretary.

SHANGHAI-NANKING LINE
Sunday Special Leaves Shanghai North for Henli, Kunshan, Soochow and Wusih as under:

	Up train			Down train
Shanghai North	dep.	8.20 a.m.	Wusih	dep.	17.20 p.m.
Henli	arr.	9.24 „	Soochow	„	18.15 „
Kunshan	„	9.34 „	Kunshan	„	18.55 „
Soochow	„	10.28 „	Henli	„	19.13 „
Wusih	„	11.23 „	Shanghai North	arr.	20.10 „

Return Fares Including Famine Relief Tax.

	I class	II class	III class
Shanghai-Henli	$3.40	$1.80	$0.90
Shanghai-Kunshan	3.40	1.80	0.90
Shanghai-Soochow	5.40	2.90	1.60
Shanghai-Wusih	7.40	4.10	2.10

Breakfast is served on the outward journey, tiffin can be ordered on the car in the Railway siding at Henli, and dinner is obtainable on the train during the return trip. Breakfast 75 cents, tiffin $1.50 and dinner $1.50 each.

This excursion affords an excellent opportunity of getting away from town for a day into the beautiful country-side during the best period of the year.

The 10 hours at Henli give ample time for rowing, swimming, or houseboat enjoyment.

At Kunshan the 9½ hours can be enjoyably spent in visiting the Gardens and Pagodas. The latter stand on the summit of Kunshan Hill, inside the city walls and can be reached in half an hour by rickshaws or by walking through the city from Kunshan station.

Soochow is noted for the well kept Private Gardens and also Tiger Hill with its Pagoda on the top, and 8 hours between the arrival and departure of the Sunday Special can be well spent in seeing these places. The city temple and silk shops inside the city are also well worth a visit. There are several Hotels at Soochow, at which foreign food is served.

Wusih city is a great silk center, and the 6 hours before the train is due to return can be filled by taking a trip to Wei Hill, two miles from Wusih Station, which can be easily reached by rickshaw, sedan chair or boat in the course of an hour. Those who climb to the top of the Hill will be rewarded with a magnificent view of Wusih city, and the Great Ta Hu Lake.

Time-tables and copies of illustrated pamphlets giving full information in regard to the above, and other points of interest can be obtained on application at the Enquiry Office Shanghai North. Seats on the train can be reserved by telephoning North 3199.

Acting Traffic Manager,
38425 Shanghai North Station.

Exchange Fluctuations

Asia Banking Corporation

July 8, 1921

Spot and forward bar silver were unchanged in London yesterday as well as in New York.

The New York cross rate improved to 371¼.

The official rates here today were unchanged from yesterday.

The market, while opening steady, closed firm. At the opening there were sellers of Sterling at 3/7¼ for July and 3/7 for forward deliveries and of Gold Dollars at 66¾ for July and 66½ forward.

In the afternoon better rates than these were obtainable, there being sellers of Sterling at 3/7¾ for July and of Gold Dollars at 68 with a corresponding improvement in forward rates.

London and New York quote the silver market as being easy.

However, in view of our firm market here today it is quite likely that China will make further purchases of silver and in such an event there is not likely to be any drop in the price.

Cotton

Messrs. J. Spunt and Company write as follows in their cotton market report of today.

China Cotton.—Since the issue of our last circular our market continued steady culminating in an upward tendency at the close although on the local staple hardly any business of a voluminous character transpired at any time during the week under review.

The inherent firmness existent in the local rates may be ascribed for the time being to several factors: (1) there being apparently a very small percentage of last season's crop remaining in stock, (2) the stimulating influence of the prosperous outlook for the yarn output, (3) the expectancy of a shorter crop than that of last year both here and in India.

From telegraphic information to hand the weather conditions in the U.S.A. Cotton belt are favorable and it is very probable that any shortages that may be experienced locally will be adequately replaced by Mid-Americans both as to quantity and price with a superior quality of fiber to boot. Tone of the market, Firm.

W.A. Chapman Inducted Into Office As Clerk Of U.S. Court

Impressive Ceremony Presided Over By Judge C.S. Lobingier; Heads Of American Organisations Express Pleasure At Appointment

William A. Chapman, secretary of the American Chamber of Commerce, was formally inducted into the office of Clerk of the Court, at an impressive ceremony yesterday morning, at the United States Court for China.

The ceremony was held in the court room. Judge C. S. Lobingier, presiding, administered the oath and welcomed Mr. Chapman to the new appointment with a short address. Committees representing the Far Eastern American Bar Association, the American Association of China and the American Chamber of Commerce were present.

After Mr. Chapman's response to Judge Lobingier's address, Messrs. Stirling Fessenden, chairman of the executive committee of the Bar Association; V. G. Lyman, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and C. L. Seitz for the American Association spoke shortly expressing satisfaction and pleasure for their organisations at Mr. Chapman's appointment.

JUDGE LOBINGIER'S ADDRESS

After administering the oath and approving the bond (signed by Carl L. Seitz and Albert B. Rosenfeld as sureties) Judge Lobingier said:

"Mr. Chapman, there has not been time since your confirmation by the Senate for your official commission to arrive, but I have received a cable message from the Secretary of State announcing your appointment and directing that you take the oath and the law authorises me to approve your bond.

"I think I need not assure you that it is a pleasure for me to do so but my gratification is far more than personal for I cannot but regard it as an event of real importance in the history of this court.

"There are two circumstances which render it so. For the first time in that history a resident of China has been appointed to the Court's permanent staff. Heretofore all such appointments have been made from the United States or from elsewhere outside of China and it must be regarded, I think, as a recognition of the growing importance of our American colony in China that one of its members has been so honored. You have been a resident of China for something over four years but previous to that you served the Government in various capacities for about eleven years in the Philippines where conditions in many respects are quite similar.

"In the second place this is the first instance where one has been appointed clerk of this court who has had any previous experience in that connection. In the early days of the court this was not so serious for the cases were few and the clerk had leisure to familiarise himself with the situation. But conditions have changed materially within the last few years and the position is no longer one for an amateur. The clerk of this court need not be a genius but he should be a master of detail, methodical, industrious, tactful and a willing servant of the public. All these qualities you demonstrated when in charge of the office under a special appointment and it was these and nothing else which won for you the permanent appointment with which the President has now honored you. So far as I am aware no political influence whatever was employed in your behalf and I regard it as a hopeful augury for the future of our judicial service in China that such an appointment should have been made entirely upon merit.

PRAISE FOR LURTON

"In welcoming you once more into our official family I should be derelict in my duty if I were not to express our appreciation of the services rendered by the gentleman who has been in charge of the clerk's office for nearly six months past. Mr. Lurton is the United States Marshal for China and the Disbursing Officer of this court and as such his time is sufficiently occupied. Upon taking charge of the clerk's office at my request he did so without any additional compensation and without any legal or technical requirement that he do so. Notwithstanding the fact that he had just returned from leave and that his regular work had accumulated to a great extent during his absence he took over this additional burden cheerfully and has borne it well. He deserves the sincere thanks of the government and of all who have had occasion to use the clerk's office.

"Finally I desire to express my appreciation of the attitude regarding this matter shown by the American Chamber of Commerce which is represented here this morning by its president and executive committee. In a sense the court's gain is its loss for Mr. Chapman has served the chamber very efficiently for over a year and a half. I know that its members are loth to lose him but they have taken a broad view of the situation, have generously recognised the serious needs of the court in this respect and have been most gracious permitting the change to be made as promptly as possible. I thank you gentlemen sincerely and I have invited you here this morning partly in order that I might express my acknowledgements to you in person.

CHAPMAN'S RESPONSE

Mr. Chapman, in response, said:

"If it please Your Honor, I appreciate more than I can say the kind expressions which Your Honor has just given and I shall endeavor by my work the more to merit them. I regret exceedingly to leave the Chamber of Commerce but I believe in my new office I may be able better to serve the community and my government and I wish to assure all that they may expect and will receive a continuance of the courteous treatment they have received at the hands of Mr. Lurton.

WELCOME BY BAR ASSN.

Mr. Stirling Fessenden, chairman executive committee, Far Eastern American Bar Association, speaking on behalf of the Bar, said:

"We not only congratulate Mr. Chapman on his appointment as clerk but it is a matter of great satisfaction to the bar collectively and individually that he has been appointed to this post. Mr. Chapman served in the capacity of clerk for a time and during all that period he demonstrated his eminent fitness for the place and he discharged his duties in a way which has won for him the esteem and admiration of all the members of the bar and I am sure that I voice their sentiments when I say that we hope Mr. Chapman will continue to be the clerk of this court as long as it suits him to do so.

"On behalf of the bar I desire to present to Mr. Chapman a small token of our esteem (a fountain pen). I may say in doing so that intrinsically it is not all we might wish but I can assure him that it carries with it the esteem and highest regard of every member of the bar of this court."

CHAMBER REGRETS LOSS

Mr. V. G. Lyman, president of the American Chamber of Commerce of China, said:

"Your Honor, the American Chamber of Commerce is very pleased to have the opportunity of being present on this occasion through its representatives and to wish Mr. Chapman the utmost success in the new office he has undertaken. When he informed me about ten days ago that his appointment had been made and that we were about to lose his services it caused somewhat of a feeling of dismay. But we hope he may be of even greater value to the court than he has been to our Chamber of Commerce and even with the difficulty we may have in securing a successor to carry on the work so well performed by Mr. Chapman it would not be our desire to interfere in any way with advancement, individually or institutionally. Therefore we wish to congratulate Mr. Chapman upon his appointment which must, because of its peculiar circumstances, be especially gratifying not only to himself but to this Court as well. We also wish to congratulate the court in receiving into its official circle one who is so well qualified to perform the duties he is today undertaking."

AM'N ASS'N PLEASED

Mr. Carl L. Seitz:

"Your Honor, it is a great pleasure to speak on behalf of the American Association of China and to congratulate Mr. Chapman on his appointment to the Clerkship of this Court. I have known Mr. Chapman for about two years. I have come in contact with him in connection with the work in the American Chamber of Commerce almost daily and I have always found him most courteous and faithful in his endeavors to render service and he has always had the best interest of the American community at heart. In fact I do not think the American Chamber of Commerce could be so far ahead in its work if it had not been for the hard endeavor of Mr. Chapman in extending the scope of its operations.

"The American Association has not, of course, come in contact with Mr. Chapman so much but in his work with the American Chamber of Commerce he has always promoted the interests of the American Association and has been most willing to co-operate. We heartily wish Mr. Chapman success in his new office."

Judge Lobingier expressed his appreciation of the presence of the representatives of the two bay associations as well as of the Bar Association and the regular court calendar was then taken up.

The Rice Crisis Ended

WITH the decision of the rice dealers yesterday to resume their business today and then negotiate with the Council over the licensing regulations, the tempest which broke at the Council's proposal to license the rice shops has subsided. All the shops including those in the French Concession and Chinese territory will throw their doors open and place rice on sale today, after seven days of passive resistance.

Although no one can predict the outcome of the negotiations yet to be carried on between the Chinese representatives and the Council over the clauses objectionable to the rice merchants, the community is to be congratulated in getting through this crisis without any serious disturbance of its peace.

The Chinese Chamber of Commerce, the five Chinese Municipal Advisors, the Commissioner of Foreign Affairs, the local authorities in Chinese territory and the elders of the guilds as well as the Chinese press have all acted fairly and coolly in the midst of high tension and excitement when any other course might have precipitated an outbreak.

That there are certain elements among the shopkeepers who were engineering trouble cannot be denied. But the point is, the fair-minded ones have won the day, thus relieving the Settlements and Chinese districts from a most unpleasant predicament.

The reasonableness of the Council's concessions and the Senior Consul's effort in bringing the impasse to an end by repeating and emphasising the Council's concessions in writing, contributed in no small measure to the solution, even though temporary, of the controversy.

The event has had at least one good result. It has brought the Council and the Chinese into closer relationship. It has caused the Council and the Chinese community to deal with each other more sympathetically. Each was made to study the views of the other with open-minded fairness. It has been shown that both the Council and the Chinese are capable of making concessions when such concessions are for the benefit of the public.

The same spirit, we trust, will prevail in the negotiations which are to follow.

The same spirit, we believe, will actuate the Council in its future dealings with the Chinese community, whose fine spirit in this crisis deserves the sympathetic consideration of all fair-minded observers.

WARWICK ARMSTRONG

One hot afternoon, and sometime in the month of July, many years ago—anyhow before the year 1910—I was one of a huge crowd who surrounded the Oval cricket Ground, when Surrey played the Australians. Tom Hayward had been giving the crowd any amount of pleasure by getting runs off the visitors bowling all round the perfect wicket. Then a change came over the game. Instead of the ones, and twos, and threes, and fours, it was block, block, block, block, over after over. The Australian captain—I forget just who he was—had called to his help a huge fellow, huge both in length and breadth, and there we had to sit and watch him put down ball after ball on the leg side, and placing them so insidiously that the batsman had no earthly chance of getting a whack at all. That big fellow wasn't popular. That crowd showed very audibly that it didn't like him. That big fellow today is not only the mascot of the Australian team, which is carrying all before it in England, but he is also the most popular cricketer who wears pads, or handles a bat at the moment.

Among the various cricket elevens from Australia which visited us in England for years before the war, Armstrong, when he came as one of them, was always regarded as a good, sound, steady plodder in batting—a man who might increase the score by anything from twelve to fifty, but was scarcely likely to do much more.

As a bowler, we knew him chiefly by his leg-theories, he having usually been selected by the Australian captain of the time to take the ball to keep down the rate of scoring which was going too fast to be pleasant for the Aussies. As a fieldman he was considered safe and good, but not in the same class as Sid Gregory, Montague Noble, or Victor Trumper.

In fact, Warwick was reckoned a sound, all-round man, good in most things, but not exactly brilliant. If anything his giant form seemed, even in his best days, to be somewhat slow in moving, and in exerting itself beyond the ordinary. He was never then the idol of the crowd, either in England or in Australia, but a man felt to be more steady than some of his scintillating comrades.

About fifteen years back, when in England, Warwick Armstrong appeared likely to become heavy and very big in bulk ere his cricket career had ended. The thousands of spectators who saw him go to the wicket had no enthusiasm on their part, for they never expected from him anything dazzling or rousing.

They watched him begin to bowl with deep resignation and regret, for they knew well to look only for slow, methodical, tiring leg balls over after over, balls often only the merest fraction short of wides, in order that the batsmen might not hit them.

BUT TODAY!

What a wonderful change! When he was omitted some time ago from Victoria's eleven, owing to jealousy, an enormous meeting of some ten thousand enthusiastic folk was held outside the gates of the ground to insist that he should be included in the team. When he comes out to bat, tremendous cheering greets him, for the crowd remembers his amazing scoring in matches, his useful bowling of a (for him) novel type, and his fine fielding.

Most of all it recalls his surprising successes as captain of the Australian team—success where nobody would have even suspected Armstrong could equal Noble or Darling and that gentry, even at a decent distance, let alone show superior brilliancy.

Yet the fact remains that this man—now a Cricket Veteran of 42, one of the biggest and heaviest men playing in first class cricket—has outshone even the greatest of Australia's past captains by the victories he has won for his team, has shown that, at over forty years of age, he can field, pick up, and throw in, and catch almost better than when twenty-one, has made such scores as he never did before, has produced as if by magic a whole repertoire of knowledge, sympathy, decision, and ability as a leader of men, of which even his closest friends previously would never have dreamt.

That is perhaps what has been the greatest secret of all in this famous cricketer—the production of that amazing sympathetic vein which always marks a great leader of men. His comrades trust him implicitly; he and they are a true band of brothers. There is his "Well done, Charley," for one who scores a century; there is, when the batsman only gets four balls and succumbs to the last one, that kindly, encouraging grasp of the hand, and "Better luck next time!" which means so much to one already keenly aware of his failure.

There have been Captains of England and Australia who were not wholly loved by their men, who were inclined to regard critics as a nuisance, who fancied that the spectators ought to be satisfied whatever sort of game they saw, who were not by any means "born" generals on the field. But Warwick Armstrong is not of this company—very conclusively proved by all late accounts from both English and Australian papers—His name and fame will rank with the best and greatest captains of all time.

Australia never had one more utterly beloved and thoroughly trusted by its big mass of players and spectators than this giant from Victoria; never had one whose name was uttered so affectionately; never one who was so great an idol of the people.

Curiously enough, the great English crowds, who have so frequently of late watched their own teams go down to defeat against the prowess of the visitors from "Down Under," have been reserving their biggest cheers for the big man Armstrong who used to bore them to tears. All of which goes to prove something. Precisely what, I don't know, but I should say it proves that no man should feel stumped because of this or that; he has always the opportunity to correct and improve and grow but most of all to fight.

Air Pilgrim Sees Prague As Anti—Red

BY JOHN H. FINLEY

Prague, May 22.—I have today flown by airplane through the air of three new republics and in three hours. Starting from Warsaw, the capital of the Republic of Poland, I flew to Prague, the capital of Czecho-Slovakia, and in the flight passed over a strip of the Republic of Germany and within sight of Upper Silesia. It is a region where three empires touched one another before the war (Russia, Germany and Austria) and it is a region where old empire antipathies still burn, even in republican bodies, and even on this Pentecost morning, when seemingly the whole population of Poland was celebrating, as I began my voyage, that event in the history of Christendom which gave concrete and miraculous promise of a unified humanity and with a language which all could understand, whatever their national boundaries.

During the week I had seen the peasants bringing into the city cartloads of branches of trees and sprays of lilacs for this celebration. And this morning not only the altars in the churches were adorned, but even the doors of the houses; and lilacs blossomed in the bridles of the horses and in the muzzles of the guns carried by the soldiers. During the week also I had seen many pilgrims—"Pentecost pilgrims," they were called—going to some shrine very near the Upper Silesian border, where for centuries the day has been especially observed. Despite all this, just over the border, across which I could look from the skies, though it was officially closed on earth, there was anything but a Pentecostal state of affairs; for desultory fighting was going on even on this day.

Lloyd George's speech on Poland was that very morning passing through the air, descending into cities and penetrating even Russia—a fiery, cloven-tongued sermon of Welsh eloquence, whose utterance one can only hope will bring the peoples of the world upon whom it descends to a better understanding. I have stated Poland's inherited suspicions and tense feelings; but even she, and perhaps she above all others, must learn a less parochial Pentecostal prayer than that which arises with such fervor on the border of Upper Silesia.

To one at the height at which I traveled over those fields without visible national boundaries or barriers, no physical transformation was discernible because of the republican "succession."

The Polish peasants still live in thickly scattered cottages among their unfenced fields; the German peasants live in huddled or "shoestring" villages, scores of which were continuously in sight, while the Czecho-Slovakian peasants live in fields of larger pattern and in villages of wider circumference. Except for this, an unpracticed observer in the skies could in these three republics discern only differences due to topography.

And even these latter were greatly reduced when seen from the skies; the mountains became mole-hills, the rivers threads, or at most ribbons; and the forests, deep-green, irregular patches among the regular, light-green gray, red or black patches of meadow or tillage. And there was no appreciable distinction made by the sun or cloud between the Poles and the Germans, or the Germans and the Czecho Slovakians. All of this intimates how entirely subjective is the international problem which at the moment was more difficult in this little area than in all the rest of the planet.

Although an airplane is not an ideal place for philosophical meditation, it was into some degree of planetary consciousness that my thoughts rose, seeing within an hour territory of three nascent republic which, to all surface appearances, might be in the same happy neighboring relationship as exists, for example, between the States of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, of which one could have like view from the skies over Port Jervis, as I remember the geography of New York.

MEMORIES OF COPERNICUS

I supposo I was further assisted in this supernational view by the sight of the statue of Copernicus, to which I had paid a last visit early in the morning in Warsaw before beginning my flight—for it would be remembered by the world, which feels unkindly toward Poland at this moment that it was a Pole who developed the theory that the earth revolves around the sun, the most important intellectual event in the history of man's conception of the cosmos.

The figure of Copernicus of Cracow, a Polish city not fifty miles from Upper Silesia, calmly contemplating a metal miniature of the orbit of the earth, the whole diameter of which is now infinitesimal in the immensity of the universe, is one that suggests the courageous and scientific detachment with which these national problems must be viewed if they are to be solved.

It is easy to hold such politically dispassionate views up in the skies. It is difficult to keep them when one descends to the struggling, passionate earth especially if the spot on which one alights is in Czecho-Slovakia; for in Czecho-Slovakia, as in the Poland from which I ascended, one finds one's sympathies following instantly the national aspirations which are so like those of our own history.

For these democratic republics which I have been seeing in their infant days, all the way from Finland to this beautiful old Bohemian capital, where a President who was the son of a coachman lives in the palace of Maria Theresa, do not seem to me to be (as the historian Ferrero has said they are to these peoples) simply "improvisations of despair" with a dictatorship of brute force as the only alternative. Certainly I had no such impression as this when, landing in Prague, I saw a procession of 100,000 Czecho-Slovakian farmers and farmers' wives and farmers' sons and daughters marching with banners of local pride and national loyalty.

It was still Sunday morning, the morning of Pentecost Day; but here in Prague, as in Poland, religious observance is closely associated with the concerns of daily life. It is illustrative of this fact that one of the great churches of Prague is reached only by a passage through ancient houses and shops. John Huss, whose statue stands in the most conspicuous place of the "old city," as that of Copernicus does in Warsaw, is associated not only with religious wars, but also with peasants' wars. And these Bohemian and Slovakian peasants of five centuries later not only thronged the churches in the afternoon of the day, but also the "fair-grounds" where were exhibited the machines and processes with which they are engaging extensively in the new peasants' wars.

There are seventy agricultural schools in Bohemia alone, with a population of 6,000,000 and the exhibits of tractors, reapers, mowers, gang plows, thrashers, churns, etc.; of stock, of vegetables and fruit, were such that, except for the signs, one could easily imagine one's self at the Syracuse State Fair. It was especially interesting to see thousands of people in the picturesque costumes in which I saw some of their neighbors who had gone to America in the pageant last Fall at the Syracuse Fair, illustrating the contribution of Europe to America's making.

FARMERS' ANTI RED DEMONSTRATION

The peasants are highly organised in the country, as are the bourgeoisie and the workmen: and that is one reason, according to the highest authority, why there is no great fear of communism here. In fact, this great farmers' parade had as one of its motives, a protest against the propaganda of the communists.

Only a short time before there had been another parade, one in which red flags and miniature gallows were carried. It happened that President Masaryk had to make his way in his car to the railway station through the very street in which the procession was passing. Immediately, so I was told by an eyewitness, a way was opened for him. The red flags disappeared as by magic, and the whole affair was converted into a demonstration in honor of the President.

The communists of this country have voted almost unanimously to join the Third International, claiming a strength next to that of Russia and Germany, but having a representation of only twenty members in the Czecho-Slovakian Parliament. It is expected that this number will be increased in the coming elections, but not to a menacing degree.

This new republic has all the ailments and troubles of the other republics I have visited: racial diversity of population, 7,000,000 Germans, 6,000,000 Czechs, 3,000,000 Slovakians, 1,000,000 Ruthenians and still others; depreciated currency (a crown is worth a cent and a half); unco-ordinated muscles, frequent attacks of colic and an infant indifference to the comfort and peace of others in the same great horizontal European tenement house. Having spent twenty of the last thirty nights outside of a comfortable stationary bed, because of my gratuitous interest in them, I have come to think of them as "children crying in the night." But as I see them by day they have all the attractiveness and promise of bright eager New York school child.

MASARYK'S EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM

Czecho-Slovakia has the advantage over the other new republics which America had in its young national life, in that it has as a great trained teacher and leader as its President, one who has the confidence of the people generally. It has also an especially competent Minister of Foreign Affairs, such a man as President Roosevelt would have chosen for his Tennis Cabinet. Moreover, they were read with a clearly defined liberal curriculum, as soon as the hour of independence came. I cannot speak of that curriculum or program in detail except to call attention to these facts:

First, that provision has been made already for the establishment of 2,000 elementary schools, fifty-five secondary schools and a university in Slovakia, and of hundreds of schools in Ruthenia, where 85 percent of the people are illiterate.

Second, that a Ministry of Social Welfare has been organised, and

Third, that the best experience of the world is being invited in the creation of a system of public hygiene.

I think it is not too much to say that the educational and health program of Czecho-Slovakia is quite as progressive, in its conception at any rate, as that of any America State.

But the historian Ferrero's thesis, upon which I have happened fortuitously here in Prague, is one that, with all the progress and promise of these individual republics, must eventually determine the fate of them all. It is that "Europe will be saved or will perish as a whole." Individual self-determination is not in itself salvation.

The son of a Moravian coachman, who, lamed from illness, sits as President of the republic in the castle on the hill, where I have just seen him—and where I have seen, too, the obsolete gilded coach of state and the golden mounted harness—fortunately has the wider view. With the knowledge of a historian, the temper of a philosopher, the experience of a teacher and the voice of a prophet, he says: "Independence will not preserve and save a nation. It is only a means to attain the righteous living of a nation." And no nation, as no individual, can live righteously that lives to its self-determined self alone.

What is needed now above all things in Europe—and not less, I suspect, in America—is a Copernican economic theory and practice. It is difficult for Europe to get away from the old Ptolemaic system, but a good place to be is in Upper Silesia, near wh the Copernican theory of physical universe was origina by the Polish astronomer.

Sicilians Revive Greek Drama

Siracusa, Sicily, April 29.—Æschylus's play "Chephore" recently was given before a large audience, which listened to the tragedy with the same interest evinced by other audiences that heard the same play, in the same theater, more than 2,000 years ago.

There was this difference, that then the author of the play was present, while today only modern Greek tourists attended in his place. Great pains were taken to follow, faithfully, the rules of the classical tragedy, especially in the reproduction of the stage arrangements and costumes, which were historically correct. The stage built on the foundations was decorated with flowers and had a Greek background. "Chephore" is the second part of Æschylus's trilogy called "Oresteia." It is considered his greatest, while his last work, and is the only complete trilogy of his in existence. That it is the most marvelous play ever written is attested by the interest which a modern audience of the twentieth century has felt all during the present performance. The first part of the drama, "Agamemnon," was given seven years ago, and at that time it was proposed to produce "Chephore" the following year, but war interfered.

In the play as given today Orestes, with his own hand, avenges the death of his father. The scene of the play is laid at Argos, with the central figure, Clytemnestra, wan and fearless, hating her accomplice and striving to dominate her revengeful son. From the beginning to the end this powerful woman carries with her a cloak of indifference, accepting her tragic fate. Woven with these wonderful moving lines is the most moving scene—that in which the old slave nurse, arriving with a message for Ægisthus, hears of the supposed death of her charge, Orestes.

There is no doubt that the representation was a success. Italians always have succeeded in producing these Greek plays with wonderfully artistic accuracy. The audience consisted not only of Italians but many American and English tourists, who came from all parts of the world to listen to this never old tragedy.

The Greek Theater where the drama was given is the largest one of its kind in the world, and is in very good condition. If all its fifty-six tiers were put into order it probably would be the largest theater of any kind, except the Coliseum in Rome.

At the performances the public sat in forty-five tiers, which held the thousands who had booked their seats many weeks ago. Even today one can read the inscriptions placed on the broad and narrow praecintiæ in the time of Hiero, tyrant of Siracusa, and patron of letters and arts, who governed from 478 until 467 B. C.

The Committee of Siracusans who today feel the same pride and interest in their theater and town as their forefathers and who united in this scheme to produce again the plays of the Greek tragedian, are hoping that next year the third part of the drama, "Eumenidi," will be given. This was their idea seven years ago, when "Agamemnon" was such a success, but the World War interfered, and during the last two years tourists remained away from Italy, so only this year was it possible to produce the second part. The theater is ideal of its kind, as apart from the play, the audience looks out over the wonderful view of the harbor.

For twelve days the play was given daily and the seats for all the performances were booked. Many of the people of Siracusa were forced to attend the final rehearsals, as in many cases all the tickets had been sold to American, English and other tourists who had applied to the committee in Rome.

With this revival of Greek plays an interest is now being taken in a plan of some Italian playwrights to produce not only the famous tragedies of Æschylus but those of Roman writers of ancient times. No country has so many Greek theaters and Roman amphitheaters. Siracusa itself can boast not only of its Greek Theater, the largest in the world, but also of a Roman amphitheater, built by Augustus in 21 B. C., over 400 years after Hiero's reign. It, too, is cut out of sheer rock, with added blocks of stone. It is fourth in size, the Coliseum being the largest, with that of Verona and Capua next in size. As it is 153 yards by 130 yards, it can seat thousands, while the arena is 228 feet by 129 feet. As the weather throughout Italy during the summer is dry the possibility of using these amphitheaters for Roman plays is splendid. Even that of Tusculum, near Rome, may be used for the tragedy of "Callandra."

Now that people of all nations have shown interest in this revival it is hoped that the project of giving "Eumenidi" next year will not be abandoned. Of course these plays require a great deal of money, and in the present instance the committee has advanced $3,000 for the venture, which they expect will cover expenses. The scenery, owing to the cost of labor, was more than 600 percent dearer than that painted for the play "Agamemnon" seven years ago. The chorus and the actors were also paid salaries far higher than at that time. Of course it will not prove a paying venture for the committee, who backed it for patriotic reasons.

Anglo-American Amity Note Of Shakespeare Festival

American and British amity was the dominant note in the Shakespeare Festival which opened at Stratford-on-Avon on Shakespeare's birthday, April 23, says a staff correspondent of the New York Tribune. James K. Hackett, the American actor, spoke from the stage after the birthday performance of "Antony and Cleopatra" and at the Shakespeare Club, telling his English listeners of the kindred celebrations that were being held in the United States, from the school children in Central Park to the college students at Leland Stanford.

"Shakespeare makes us one," he said, "through the magic of his language and our common love for him."

At the Shakespearean Club also the first public announcement was made that Mr. Hackett had been invited by the French government to play "Macbeth" at the Odeon Theater in Paris. Mr. Hackett unfurled the Stars and Stripes at the annual flag ceremony, when flags of all the nations were flown over Stratford.

Heretofore cordiality for American Shakespearians has been shown by the hearty welcome they receive at Stratford. It is possible that in the fall this cordiality will be extended by a visit to the United States of the New Shakespeare Company, which, under the direction of W. Bridges-Adams and the general direction of Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, is playing at the Stratford Memorial Theater.

"This possible tour," said Mr. Bridges-Adams, "seems to me more than a theatrical business venture, important as it is in that regard. I feel that my company will be an ambassador of friendship, strengthening the bond that unite the lovers of Shakespeare in England and America.

The coal strike and threatened railway strike interfered only a little with the attendance at the festival. The village was full of visitors, and the little theater could have been sold out half a dozen times. Owen Wister and A. E. Thomas were expected to be guests of honor, but the strike had driven them to the Continent.

The festival began in a new way, opening on the birthday itself instead of on the Monday of the week in which it fell. Consequently it did not "mark time" for several days, as in former years, but started off vigorously and in splendor.

Seven plays form the repertoire of the four-week season: "Antony and Cleopatra," the novelty of the festival; "The Merry Wives of Windsor," "Richard III," "As You Like It," "Macbeth," "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and (a new departure, the first step beyond the confines of Shakespeare) "The School for Scandal."

"There are several quite novel features in the presentation of 'Antony and Cleopatra,'" Mr. Bridges-Adams said. "This is the first modern public performance that I know about which presents the scenes in the sequence in which they are written. Other performances have rearranged the scenes or fused them into startling new ones. The Stratford production gives them in their true order.

"Implicit in the lines of the play is the constant suggestion of Cleopatra's ingrained and insatiable amorousness, that reached out even to the Nubian slave in the first interview. I have never seen this brought out on the stage; usually this side is first shown when she allows the messenger from Rome to be familiar, but the text is incontrovertible, and I am producing it that way.

"Then, too, I have retained the scene in which the treasurer tells the triumphant Caesar that Cleopatra had made a false inventory of her possessions and has kept some of her jewels back. It is generally omitted, I believe, because it is supposed to weaken the final effect of nobility in the death scene. I keep it, however, because it shows, as Shakespeare intended it to show, that Cleopatra was a courtesan to the last. Also, in its demand for baffled anger and indignation the scene gives the actress the opportunity for another note, and it serves to break the pathetic tension of the last act."

Mr. Bridges-Adams has evolved some new business for "Richard III" that is being much discussed. In the scene of the council chamber, from which Richard, by a false charge, sends Lord Hastings to an unexpected death, Richard and his ally, Buckingham, remain alone on the stage. Richard is placing the furniture in careful disorder so that it shall appear that Hastings attacked him, thus giving weight to the lying accusation. At the same time he is munching the strawberries which he has mischievously asked the bishop to bring him. The fall of the ax is heard. Richard winks at Buckingham, crosses himself mockingly, and goes on with the strawberries.

Mr. Bridges-Adams regards the matter of "cuts" differently from many producers.

"I keep all the scenes and play them in their proper sequence. I make no cuts that weaken the dramatic action or make the story unintelligible. My method is one of 'snipping,' cutting out lines here and there, shortening speeches that are not vital and reducing the less essential dialogue.

"My aim in the New Shakespeare Company is to maintain a company that shall play continually in London Stratford and America, with a company touring the Provinces. I believe that Shakespeare can be made to pay, but it must be done in the grand manner, not smothered by scenery or bent to a star, but played on a beautiful stage by actors with beautiful voices and heroic personalities."

In the audience of the birthday performance were Sir Sidney Lee, the biographer of Shakespeare and one of the most distinguished of Shakespearian scholars; Mr. and Mrs. Hackett, Miss Marie Corelli, Dr. Ernest Law and Mrs. Charlotte Stopes, other Shakespearean scholars, and Dr. Marie Stopes.

Sir Sidney, who delivered the annual address at the Shakespeare Club, paid a sincere tribute to the devotion of America to Shakespeare. He spoke of the services of American scholars and editors and the great tradition of the American stage. Walter Hampden he mentioned particularly.

TEXACO

TEXACO GREASES

If you think all greases are the same, make this test:

Use Texaco Grease on one bearing, another kind of grease on a duplicate working part, operating under the same conditions. See which lasts the longer. The results of such an experiment will speak for themselves.

The same manufacturing care is expended on Texaco Greases as on any other Texaco Product. They are made from the finest zero cold test mineral oils and selected compounding materials. Each different grade is adapted to a specialized use. There is a grade to meet every need.

Texaco Greases (five grades)
Texaco Vega Axle Grease
Texaco Axle Grease-Graphite
Texaco Axle Grease-Light

After the show, while the theatre orchestra is still playing its joyous farewell, set your course for the Cafe Parisien, where good food and good people meet.

It will make us very happy to prepare a zestful repast for your party.

Simply utter a wish for what you want, and-Presto! it is there before you.

Never, never before, you'll declare, did things taste so good!

After the show, then bring the crowd to the Parisien, Wonderful Jazz Music!

CALIFORNIA CORPORATIONS

In a statement issued regarding the growth of California corporations and the increase in their number during 1921, Charles O'Connor, head of the corporation department of the Secretary of State, says:

Three thousand, six hundred and seven corporations were formed in California during the twelve-month period beginning May 1, 1920, and ending May 1 of this year. Many of these corporations have capital stocks running into millions, the report states.

The gain made during the twelve months brings the total number of California corporations—domestic only—up to 95,327. Of this number 11,800 have been formed since 1917.

The largest capital stock reported by any corporation in the State is $160,000,000 credited to the Southern Pacific Railroad Company.

SAN FRANCISCO CREDITS

Supervising a gross business annually in the neighborhood of $7,500,000,000, the San Francisco Association of Credit Men plays a commanding role in the relations between wholesalers and retailers. Bank clearances of San Francisco for the past year amounted to $8,122,064,916. The above approximation has been arrived at after allowing for duplication of transactions and clearances which with no bearing upon credit operations.

San Francisco Real Estate

Real Estate sales in San Francisco during April aggregated $7,623,552, according to figures compiled by Thomas Magee and Sons.

This is an increase of about $650,000 over the figures for the month of March.

SHOWING A PARAMOUNT STAR ATTRACTION

WALLACE REID
IN
"Believe Me, Xantippe"

A slip of the tongue, a mere phrase, "Believe Me, Xantippe!" brought him to grips with the law he had for eleven long months deftly evaded. You can't help thrilling at this extraordinary tale.

WALLACE REID wagers $20,000 that he can forge a check, notify the police of his act, and then elude them for a year. How he fares, and the inexplicable turns of fortune that beset him, combine to form one of the most fascinating photoplays of the year.
